STATE COUNCIL HEARS APPEAL FOR BIG REWARD

Governor Walsh today pflut before the Executive Council the proposal to add $500 to the reward offered by the Brookline Selectmen for the capture of the two yeggs who, last Friday night, entered the Hitchcock drug store at No. 999 Beacon street, held up Charles J. Merrill, the manager, at revolver point. When Merrill kicked shut the door of the safe to protect the day's receipts he was shot dead.

Brookline has offered a $500 reward, the limti allowed under the law, and has asked that the State increase this amount.

NEW SUSPECTS GUILTLESS.

Early today two men were arrested in Brookline as suspects in the case, but after George W. Slason, a clerk in the drug store, had seen them he was positive neither had anything to do with the murder of Merrill. The men were, however, charged with being vagrants and given thirty days. They were arrested by Patrolman Joseph J. O'Connell, Jr., and gave the names of John Foy, twenty-five, of Central Falls, R. I., and John Hawley, thirty-eight, of Alexandria, Va.

n the discussion of the proposal to increase the reward offer, the Executive Council today considered the question of where the money was to come from. It was said none was available. Selectman Walter J. Cusick of Brookline, however, declares that he believes the recent legislation empowers the State to offer a reward for the arrest of the perpetrator of a felony, as well as for a fugitive.

CONFER WITH GOVERNOR.

Chairman of Selectmen Philip S. Parker went with Mr. Cusick today for an extended conference with the Governor before the Council session opened.

Meanwhile the Brookline police have sent broadcast a circular offering the $500 reward and giving descriptions of the two men. The description of one man reads:

> About thirty years of age, five feet eleven inches, 165 pounds, smooth face, wore a brown suit and a brown cap or low crowned soft brown hat.

The other man is thus described:

> About twenty-three years of age, five feet eight inches, 140 pounds, light complexion, smooth face, frowsy hair, wore a brown suit and a light-colored check cap.

Both of the men, according to the circular, were "apparently of the hobo class, and were dirty in appearance."

Baby Boy Kills His Infant Brother

Mrs. Hattie E. Sutherland of No. 65 West Eagle street, East Boston, is prostrated at her home today as the result of the tragic death of her baby boy, "Joe," at the hands of his older brother, "Bobbie."

The baby was seven weeks old. "Bobbie" is two and a half years old. Baby "Joe" was crying, and "Bobbie" to stop its cries pushed a rubber nipple down the younger child's throat. Mrs. Sutherland found the baby choking to death. "Joe" was dead when a doctor arrived.

DEATH WINS IN RACE TO SIDE OF WOUNDED HARVARD GRADUATE

George Williamson, Harvard '05.

Death won in a grim race when George Williamson, one-time Harvard man, since Lieutenant in the Duke of Wellington's Regiment, died "from wounds" in England or France. For at the time of his death his wife and daughter were on the Atlantic, aboard the steamer Baltic racing to the bedside of her wounded husband.

This was the news from Montreal today. Williamson was graduated from Harvard in 1905; and his friends in Boston and hereabouts read today for the first time of his two months' heroic fighting in the trenches, his wound at last, and now his death.

The news of Williamson's death came to Montreal in a cablegram from Lady Skinner, Lieutenant Williamson's mother. Previous dispatches had told of his work with the Duke of Wellington's West Riding Regiment.

News of his wound had come a week ago, and Mrs Williamson, who is a daughter of J. Alexander Gordon of Montreal, left at once for New York, where she caught the fast liner Baltic for England. Her desperate hope was that she might see her husband before he died; for his wound was known to be serious. She sailed from New York Wednesday, and would thus land in England perhaps two days after her husband's death.

Lieutenant Williamson died in the Fourth Clearing Hospital. He was a reservist, and had been in Montreal four years when the call came that took him to England. He was twenty-nine years old, a member of the firm of Smith, Markey, Skinner, Pugsley & Hyde of No. 179 St. James street, Montreal, and one of the best known young men in the city.

Williamson is thought to be the first Harvard victim in the present war. Raymond Oveson, a Boston attorney who was a classmate of Williamson, said today:

"Williamson was virile, witty, a man of gooo habits, exceptionally well liked by his classmates. He was a brilliant man, never had to study much. Immediately after his graduation he went to England and entered Oxford University and in 1910 was admitted to the English bar.

"November 9, 1910, he married Miss Hilda Isabel Gordon of Montreal and went there to practice. In Harvard he was connected with the Lampoon and was socially popular. His classmates will feel his loss."

Contributions are coming in for the "Give-a-Basket" fund, like rays of sunshine, illuminating the Christmas prospects for many, many families.

MISS SLATER'S LETTER.

With these contributions come letters and statements of swift appreciation by the public of this good plan. Among the latest statements in praise of the "Give-a-Basket" work which the AMERICAN has received is one from Miss Esther Slater of the Back Bay set.

Miss Slater is the eldest daughter of Mrs. Horatio N. Slater of Beacon street. She has recently returned from Europe. She is familiar with charity work and knows what pressing need there is, especially at Christmas time, of practical relief for the suffering.

Miss Slater gives $25 to the "Give-a Basket" fund and says:

> The "Give a Basket" plan for Christmas is a fine one. I believe that, in the many local charities, this is one of the best. While there is tremendous suffering in Europe on account of the war, I feel that we should take care of those at home.

No applications for baskets will be received over the telephone.

Remember! Every cent contributed to the Christmas fund will go in the form of food or supplies to the poor and the needy. The expense of distribution and the like will be looked out for by the AMERICAN. The money you give goes entirely to the poor.

The Christmas Editor of the AMERICAN received a delightful letter today from Guy W. Cox, the attorney. Mr. Cox contributed to the fund once, then thought matters over and—but read his letter. Here it is:

> Boston, Nov. 23, 1914.
> Christmas Editor, AMERICAN:
> Dear Sir—Over the telephone I subscribed $5 to the Boston AMERICAN Christmas Box Fund. A little reflection has led me to double that amount, for which

TAMMANY CLUB BALL FOR XMAS BASKET FUND

The Tammany Club of Ward 17—Mayor Curley's famous organization—is to hold a charity ball in Symphony Hall on Wednesday evening, December 16, for the benefit of the Boston AMERICAN'S "Give-a-Basket" fund.

Mayor Curley announced this today, as soon as he had engaged Symphony Hall for that date.

All the net proceeds of the ball will be turned over to the AMERICAN for the "Give-a-Basket" fund. The Mayor estimated today that the fund will gain at least $2,500 from this charitable festivity.

As soon as the hall was secured further arrangements were made with speed. A rush order was given for 10,000 tickets, which are to be sold for one dollar apiece.

These tickets are to be ready by Friday, for there will be a special meeting of the Tammany Club Friday night for members to receive batches of tickets, to be sold throughout the city.

Governor David I. Walsh, Mayor and Mrs. Curley and others will lead the grand march at the ball, and families prominent in the political, business and social life of the city will be well represented in the long line of couples that will follow the distinguished leaders.

AUSTRIANS WIN BIG VICTORY, DRIVING FOE FROM HUNGARY

The German attempt to force a way through the allies' lines between Ypres and La Basse in following out the Kaiser's orders to reach Calais by December 10 were checked today when the German advance near La Bassee was repulsed. The request of the Germans nears Verdun for an armistice was also refused by the allies.

Reports of fresh activity in the Pont-a-Mousson region indicate, according to Paris advices, that the French have taken the offensive in that district and are striking at Metz, the great German stronghold just across the frontier. Pont-a-Mousson is in the Moselle Valley, only fifteen miles south of Metz.

Vienna sends out a report today that has been received from Buda Pest to the effect that the second Russian invasion of Hungary through the Carpathian passes has been repulsed with terrific losses for the invaders. The details of a trap set by the Austrian forces and the manner in which the Russians marched into it only to be completely shattered and routed are given and, according to the estimate of one of the Austrian officers, the Russians lost 25,000 in killed and wounded.

NAVAL BATTLE IN ADRIATIC.

Advices from Rome today say that, according to a dispatch from Ancona, the Austrian and Anglo-French fleets fought a naval battle off the Island of Lissa in the Adriatic on Tuesday. It says the conflict lasted four hours, but gives no further details. No information as to the battle has been received from official sources.

A London news agency dispatch from Petrograd states that the American consul at Warsaw has protested to the United States State Department against the dropping of bombs by a German Zeppelin near the consulate in the Polish capital.

Petrograd announces officially that Russian troops are advancing directly upon Erzerum, the Turkish fortress in Armenia. The Turks have been defeated and are fleeing along the whole front.

The German Admiralty admits that the German submarine U-18 was sunk by a British patrol boat.

DESTROY SIX GERMAN SUBMARINES

Today's dispatches also tell of a vigorous aggressive attack by the allied fleets in which the German naval base at Zeebrugge was set on fire and practically destroyed, together with six German submarines.

Other German submarines, states a Sluis, Holland, dispatch, gave battle to the raiding squadron and forced a withdrawal. The Sluis correspondent of the AMERICAN and the London Times says a British torpedo boat destroyer was seriously damaged.

AMBROSE BRIDGE, MILDRED'S SUITOR, SOUGHT BY POLICE

HOULTON, Me., Nov. 25.—Among the many letters and post cards held by the State in the Mildred Sullivan murder mystery are a batch seized in Boston in the room occupied by Dr. Lionel E. Dudley and Alice Pellitier at a Warren avenue lodging house. It was learned today that Sergeant Irwin swooped down on the Maine fugitives so suddenly that they did not have time to conceal or destroy anything.

One letter is reported to have strongly urged the fugitives to return at once as the only one suspected was Katie Michaud. In some manner the Aroostook county authorities got wind of the letters and they intercepted letters even more damaging than those found in the Boston lodging house. It was in the same room in Boston where the letters were found that the police seized a bag containing Dr. Dudley's surgical instruments. The State alleges that he used certain of these instruments in the Sullivan case and that he intended to continue in his practice when he and Alice Pellitier married and went West.

There is an accessory suspect so wealthy and influential in the Sullivan murder mystery that the State, with all of its elaborate machinery and power, has found it hard, if not impossible to implicate him to date.

It is whispered in official circles today that a secret indictment has been returned against this man, but that it will not be made public right away. In contradiction to this assertion is the claim, apparently every bit as authentic, that the State, after weeks of the most zealous kind of research, failed to harvest enough evidence to convince the jury, so far as the prominent citizen's case was concerned.

SEEK AMBROSE BRIDGE.

When the Aroostook County Grand Jury "rises" today further findings in the schoolgirl tragedy may be revealed. Meanwhile Ambrose Bridge, sweetheart of the victim of one of the weirdest murders in the history of the State of Maine has become the central figure in the case, more interesting for the time being even than the young surgeon and two young women jointly accused of the killing. Deputy sheriffs hunted all night and today resumed their search for Bridge.

He had supper last night within a stone's throw of the jail, three hours after it had been inadvertently made public that he had been indicted as an accessory before the fact with Dr. Lionel Dudley, Alice Pellitier and Katherine Michaud, who were indicted on charges of first degree murder and illegal practice in connection with the death of the seventeen-year-old school girl at Presque Isle, on the night of September 1.

The true bill against Bridge had been secretly returned and the authorities had planned to keep the Grand Jury's action dark until they had succeeded in coaxing or extracting from the young Irishman more about the wealthy suspect in the case.

Although knowing that Bridge was an accessory on his own admissions, the county officials had decided that it was wiser not to lock him up with Dr. Dudley, and the other suspects in order to give him the impression that he was in no danger. Therefore, Ambrose Bridge had the freedom of the town, visited friends, played pool, and went skating for weeks.

BRIDGE VANISHES AFTER TALK WITH REPORTERS

He talked with the reporters about the Grand Jury's findings at 6 o'clock last evening and then he suddenly disappeared. By dark the report that Bridge was among those indicted had circulated with the rapidity characteristic of a town feverish with expectancy and curiosity. And of corse one of the first to learn it was Bridge.

The officials learned too late that the secret indictment had been given out with the others to the reporters by mistake. They tried to deny it at first, but found it futile. When they went in search of Bridge he was absent from his usual haunts.

Behind the disappearance of Bridge lies the big scandal in the case involving one of the wealthiest men in Houlton, whose interests Bridge is believed to have protected despite all the cajoling and strategy of the county authorities. They have been lenient with Ambrose to reach the man "higher up."

This man is alleged to have paid Bridge and Katherine Michaud liberally to keep his identity secret. He is alleged to have kept Bridge supplied with money right up to yesterday. Evidently Bridge had cunningly waited to see whether the Grand Jury would act against him and planned on eluding a capias. Yet the young man was within a block of the court house three hours before the chase began. Now the authorities are sorry they didn't lock him up from the start, because he hasn't given them a third what they wanted.

Bridge showed himself to be a dodger among dodgers in side stepping examinations. The officials quizzed and "third degreed" him until they got tired. He told all he knew about Mildred Sullivan's going to Presque Isle and the part he and Katherine Michaud played in the preliminaries to the illegal surgery, but questions about the man higher up had no effect.

Sheriff Elmer Bryson wanted to lock up Bridge from the start. He even went ahead on his own initiative and jailed Bridge for a day and night, but others thought it might antagonize Ambrose, and he was released to await the action of the Grand Jury. Last evening after the officials learned the newspapers all over New England had published that Bridge had been indicted with the others, there was a hurried conference in County Attorney Archibald's office and the hunt for Bridge in cafes and pool rooms and at his room in the Exchange Hotel began about 9 o'clock with discouraging results.

That there is a prominent citizen in the case who got Bridge to engineer the Mildred Sullivan treatment which resulted in so horrible an ending is now officially admitted. A high official in the case said today:

"The report published last week in the AMERICAN about a wealthy man being back of this case was true, but we couldn't talk about it. It would spoil our plans. It was to get more about the big fellow that we used Bridge as gingerly as we did. We had to use gloves with Bridge, but he held something back and will always, I fear. I think now that it was a mistake not to lock him up. I knew Bridge would be indicted and expected the prominent suspect would be, too."

Deputy Martin Lawlis, who went to Boston with County Attorney Archibald on the case, said to a detective on a train when he was bringing Kate Michaud here from Wallagrass:

"We expect to have one of the biggest men in our town in this case before Saturday." But evidently something miscarried.

Miss Mary Cyrs, waitress at the Snell House, claims Bridge told her a week after Mildred Sullivan disappeared that there was another man in the case, adding: "But I won't cough up until the right time comes."

DUDLEY AND ALICE PELLITIER LAUGH AFTER INDICTMENT

Mrs. Southard, at whose house Katie Michaud and Mildred Sullivan stopped at Presque Isle the first two days of the fair, has told how she saw through a crack in the curtain Ambrose Bridge display money to his chum, George Davis, while they were sitting on a bed in her parlor.

Joseph T. Michaud, second cousin of Katherine, to whom she made a part confession the day after the accused were brought here from Boston early in October, said today that Mel Putnam told him that day he knew of a wealthy Houlton man who was paying Bridge and Katie to protect him. This was weeks before Katherine's confession and the rumors which linked the names of a half dozen prominent men with the case, but wrongfully.

The Grand Jury will complete its work today. The arraignment of Dr. Dudley, Alice Pellitier and Katherine Michaud will probably not take place until Friday or Saturday. They are each charged with murder in the first degree and illegal surgery on Mildred Sullivan.

There are two indictments each against Dudley, Miss Michaud and Alice Pellitier for alleged murder and illegal surgery and there is a third charging Alice Pellitier with having been an accessory before the fact of murder. Bridge was indicted on the charge of having figured as an accessory in causing the school girl to go to Presque Isle and to Mrs. Southard's on September 1.

Perley Pellitier will be liberated as his sister Etta was after the return of the prisoners from Boston in October. No finding was returned in the case of Perley.

Counsel for Dr. Dudley and Alice Pellitier informed them of the Grand Jury's finding last evening and the doctor and his sweetheart could be heard laughing and talking. Katie Michaud did not hear the outcome until today and it stunned her. She supposed that her confession and testimony before the Grand Jury would end her responsibilities. She hasn't had a visitor since she was locked up the second time.

GUARD OVER DUDLEY.

Sheriff Bryson said today that he has established a constant guard over Dr. Dudley and Alice Pellitier since the Grand Jury findings. He doesn't propose to take any chances. Dr. Dudley's talk of suicide before his arrest has caused the jail officials to exercise the greatest possible precaution. Dr. Dudley has requested the use of a razor to shave himself, but this has been denied him. A "trusty" shaves him.

CROKER WILL WED DAUGHTER OF CHEROKEE

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—The sensation caused among politicians and intimate friends of Richard Croker, former head of Tammany Hall, when it was discovered he had planned a secret wedding for tomorrow, was increased today when a report came from Memphis that his bride-to-be is the granddaughter of a Cherokee Indian chieftain.

The few friends of Mr. Croker here who have been given verbal invitations to attend the ceremony, were not told the bride's identity. Those who inquired of Mr. Croker's relatives about the mystery were not enlightened.

However, a letter sent from New York to Memphis, according to a dispatch from the latter city, reveals what is believed to be the correct version of the romance of the old-time political leader, who is now seventy-one.

The bride-to-be is reported to be Miss Beulah Edmonson of No. 55 East Sixty-second street, New York.

The letter was received by Joseph Townsend from his daughter, Mary H. Townsend. It was preceded by a letter from Miss Willie M. Townsend, who is the roommate of the bride-to-be, and who is to be one of the bridesmaids.

DAUGHTER OF PRINCESS.

"There is a very interesting woman here who is the granddaughter of the Cherokee Indian, Chief Sequoyah, who invented the Cherokee alphabet," she wrote. "Mr. Edmonson, this girl's father, a Scotchman, married the Cherokee Princess Sequoyah, which is the family name.

"Born in Oklahoma and educated in Chicago University, the bride-elect went to the New York Studio Club some time ago and at that place is said to have met Mr. Croker."

Mr. Croker, who has been for several years at Glencairn, Ire., returned to New York last September to attend the funeral of his wife.

He invited his most intimate friends a few days ago to his wedding at St. Agnes' Church, Lexington avenue and Forty-third street, on Thanksgiving morning. Despite every precaution for secrecy, the news became known.

Close friends of Mr. Croker's admitted to a reporter they had received verbal invitations to "the affair," but admitted on close questioning that it was a wedding. They held their hands to their lips when questioned as to details.

"We are under solemn promise not to say a word," they said.

FRIENDS MYSTIFIED.

"Who is the bride?" was the question put to old-time Tammany politicians who know Richard Croker like a father.

"Ah, that's the secret," they replied. "We're going to the affair, but we don't know whom he's going to meet at the altar. Honestly, we don't know. We were just tipped off to come around to the church and that is all we know about the affair."

The National Democratic Club was astir with the news. Mr. Croker was in the clubhouse a few hours before, but when he discovered that the newspaper men wanted to see him he went away in an automobile.

According to the plans, as admitted by one of the men invited to the wedding, the church ceremony will be held at 10:30 o'clock Thursday. The couple will go to Palm Beach for their honeymoon.

"There is absolutely nothing to it," said Howard Croker, who lives at the Croker town house, No. 5 East Seventy-fourth street. Young Mr. Croker could not be seen but he sent his denial of the reports of the approaching marriage through a friend at the National Democratic Club.

$70,000 FIRE PROBE STARTED BY M'DONOUGH

Fire Chief McDonough today investigated the fire fighting methods at the $70,000 four-alarm fire last night at Nos. 317-357 Cambridge street, West End, during which it was claimed there was no superior officer on hand to direct the firemen. As a result of the chief's probe it is expected charges will be preferred against one or more fire officials.

Asked about his inquiry, Chief McDonough said:

"I must refer you to Commissioner Grady."

Commissioner Grady said:

"You'll have to talk with Chief McDonough."

McDonough arrived at the fire late and vigorously criticised his men for allowing the water tower to lie idle on Charles street. He said he would find out why no superior officer was on duty in the street up to the time of his own arrival.

District Chief Madison, who was directing the fight inside the building, was injured by falling down a flight of stairs.

Smoke from the fire excited prisoners at the Charles Street Jail, who thought the jail was burning. Sheriff Quinn and Mayor and Mrs. Curley, who were on the scene, assured the prisoners there was no danger.

Dan Cupid Hunting Malden Phone Girl as Twelfth Captive

"Dan" Cupid flitted into the Malden Telephone Exchange today in search of his twelfth victim of 1914. His eleventh is on her honeymoon. She was Miss Lorina M. Carr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Carr of No. 59 Cross street, Malden, until the ceremony, performed by the Rev. Herbert Townsend, pastor of the Robinson Methodist Church, made her the bride of Herbert W. Fairbanks, a Watertown druggist.

Since the first of January Cupid has stabbed heart after heart in front of the switchboard until he acquired eleven notches in his bow.

Where the bride and groom first met is a secret. She was formerly a choir girl in the Robinson Methodist Church. He was prominent in the Epworth League in Watertown. Somebody said they looked over a hymn book and fell in love. Maybe they did, but their friends say Cupid danced more than one jig on the telephone wires between Watertown and Malden.

Offer Proof That Refugee Ship Was Sunk by Germans

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The British Admiralty today made public a photograph of a fragment of a torpedo to prove that the Germans had purposely sunk the French refugee ship Admiral Gauteaume in the English Channel on October 26 while she was on her way to England with 2,000 refugees. Accompanying the photograph was the following notice from the government press bureau:

"The fragment of a German torpedo pictured in the photograph was found in a damaged lifeboat belonging to the Admiral Gauteaume which was sunk in the Channel with the loss of forty lives. The deliberate destruction in broad daylight of a defenceless passenger ship filled with refugees is on the whole the best specimen of German methods yet recorded."

President on Way to Williamstown for Thanksgiving

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Showing no ill effects from the long hours he labored at his desk at the White House last night before his departure to visit his daughter, President Woodrow Wilson arrived here this morning at 6 o'clock, chatted with his friend, Colonel F. M. House, for almost three hours before his train left Weehawken at 8:55 o'clock. It is believed that the President and Colonel House went over possible appointees to the Federal Trade Commission and over the details of the message which the President will send to Congress week after next.

The President is on his way to Williamstown, Mass., to pass Thanksgiving Day with his daughter, Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, and her husband. Today is the anniversary of their marriage. The President was accompanied by his physician and secret service men. His train was switched over to the West Shore lines at Weehawken, from which yards it left for Albany.

Freighter Arrives Damaged by Gale

The British steamship Queen Wilhelmina reached Boston today after being storm-tossed for nineteen days. The freighter was eight days overdue. On November 16 her steering gear broke, and the ship was helpless for five hours in a tempest. Waves crumpled up thirty feet of her steel bulwark. The liner brought over the cargo of the Warren liner Michigan, which was commandeered by the British government as an army transport.

Andrew Carnegie Is "Still a Young Man" at 79 Years

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Andrew Carnegie, multimillionaire iron and steel master, celebrated his seventy-ninth birthday quietly here today. Mr. Carnegie received scores of messages of congratulations from friends and former business associates, but there were no ceremonies at the Carnegie residence due to the recent death of a relative of Mrs. Carnegie.

"I have never felt better," declared the steel king after a brisk walk in Central Park. "I keep young by taking care of myself, feeling the Gospel of God. I feel younger than I did last year.

"Seventy-nine years isn't so very old for a man to live if he takes good care of himself and lives according to the Gospel of God.

"The joys of living to be seventy-nine? Bosh! Come back in twenty-five years and I'll tell you all about them, if I'm not too tired. Old age and myself have not become acquainted yet. I'm still a young man."

LARGEST DEER KILLED IN STATE WEIGHS 425 LBS

ATHOL, Nov. 25.—To Harold Lindsey goes the distinction of shooting the largest deer killed in the State during the open week. It was a twelve-point sixteen-year-old buck and weighed 425 pounds. The back of its neck had begun to grow gray as another indication of old age. Mr. Lindsey is one of five hunters who are camping in New Salem, and no one outside the party knew of the big buck having been shot until today, when the hunters left their shelter and came to Athol for a photographer. All but one out of the five hunters obtained a deer, and it is doubtful if there is any other hunting party who were more successful regarding weight as well as number. Harold L. Hamilton got a 125-pound doe; Millard Esty a 180-pound doe; Frank Lindsey a 160-pound doe. Louis Lindsey was the only member of the party who failed to make a kill.

The killing of the big buck furnished a great amount of sport. The party believes that one of them had shot its mate which infuriated the animal. Millard Esty, one of the hunting party, was the first to come across him. He had been having trouble with his gun, and while trying to repair it, having the gun in parts, he was surprised to see the monster buck glaring viciously at him only a few rods away. The buck then began to circle the hunter, snorting and shaking his antlers with his head to the ground. Esty managed to climb a tree just as the buck charged, and got out of reach. He then whistled to his companions who in ten minutes came to his rescue. The buck disappeared on the approach of the others. The hunters then set out in pursuit of the animal and in a few hours rounded him up and made the kill.

Decision to Free Much U. S. Shipping

LONDON, Nov. 25.—A decision of the British prize court in the case of the Miramichi, the British ship which sailed before the outbreak of the war from Galveston with a cargo of wheat destined for Rotterdam and thence to two German firms, will have an important effect upon American shipping interests. Consul-General Robert P. Skinner said: "The decision should mean the release soon of millions of dollars' worth of American shipping of a similar status."

Uric Acid in Your Food

Even dogs can eat too much meat. Certainly many people "dig their graves with their teeth." Few get enough exercise to justify a meat diet, for meat brings uric acid. The kidneys will try hard to get rid of that poison, but often a backache, dizziness, urinary disorder or some other slight symptom will show that the kidneys are weakening and need help. The time-tried remedy, then, is Doan's Kidney Pills.

A S. Somerville Man Says So:

FEDERAL COURT IS NOW AFTER HENRY SIEGEL

Henry Siegel, convicted of misdemeanor and sentenced to pay a $1,000 fine and serve ten months unless within six months he makes restitution to depositors in his New York bank, is by no means out of the woods, it developed today.

Not only has District Attorney Pelletier taken steps with a view to securing restitution of the $75,000 lost by depositors in Siegel's Boston bank, but the federal government is now investigating some of the transactions in which he was involved.

There has been much criticism in New York of the mild character of the penalty inflicted for Siegel's manipulations which robbed 15,000 depositors in the New York bank of over $2,000,000. The entrance of the federal government into the case, it is said, reflects this feeling.

According to the federal criminal code, the mailing of a false financial statement with intent to defraud is a felony.

District Attorney Whitman, it was said, will be asked to furnish the government with a copy of the minutes of the recent Siegel trial.

"District Attorney Whitman ought to bring Siegel to trial immediately on one of the other indictments against him. The verdict as rendered was almost one of innocence."

Thus John P. Munch of Brooklyn, who for months was chairman of the Siegel depositors' committee, expressed himself. Mr. Munch said his views represented those of 99 per cent. of the depositors.

"If Siegel had intended to do anything or if he was able to do anything," he added, "he has already had plenty of opportunity. The depositors waited four months before taking any action. Then we were told we were going to get $450,000, which would have been 32 per cent. of our claim, but the money never materialized.

"Unless he makes good on his promise of making restitution in the time in which he is to be at liberty, he ought to be forced to serve the entire ten months that Justice Clark imposed on him."

John P. Murray, former counsel for the depositors' committee, said Justice Clark had followed the wishes of a majority of the depositors when he gave Siegel an opportunity to make restitution, with the alternative of going to jail if he did not do so.

Newton Mayor Says Many Policemen Are Inefficient

Mayor Edwin O. Childs of Newton, commenting today on Attorney General Boynton's "quo warranto" bill filed at East Cambridge attacking the mayor's action in reinstating Policeman David Neagle in the Newton police department, declared that "a number of men on the Newton police force were inefficient."

"The question at issue," said the mayor, "is whether the police chief here can discharge a man from the department or whether the mayor only can take such action. Neagle was discharged by Chief Mitchell for stealing milk and other accusations.

"I content that the charter empowers the Mayor alone to remove an officer; that Neagle was illegally discharged. I think Neagle has been punished enough, considering a number of men on the police force are inefficient."

MOBS DISARM MEXICAN POLICE AND RULE CITY

By ARTHUR CONSTANTINE.

Staff Correspondent of the American.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 25.—Serious rioting broke out here last night and mobs took virtual possession of the city. The rioters armed themselves with weapons and ammunition and looted stores and spread terror throughout the city.

Shortly before midnight there were numerous shooting affrays and several persons were wounded.

The police attempted to quell the mobs, but they were disarmed by the rioters. Many of the policemen were severely beaten.

The new reign of terror was inaugurated when a crowd gathered before the National Palace and was exhorted by Mexican agitators. The crowd turned into a mob when it was urged to sack the stores. Following their self-appointed leaders, they smashed the doors of the buildings known to contain arms.

The few policemen were almost helpless in the face of the mobs that soon formed in several sections of the city. They did their utmost to curb the outbreak, but were soon overpowered.

All street car traffic was stopped and the only conveyances that were able to get through the streets were the Red Cross cars bearing the wounded from the fighting at Tacubaya.

Henry J. Skeffington, commissioner of immigration for the Port of Boston, is investigating conditions in the Boston Thread and Twine Company—the conditions which moved Mayor Curley to propose the appointment of Mrs. Anna T. Steinauer as a policewoman—it became known today.

Mr. Skeffington refused to discuss his plans, but a high official in the immigration service said:

"Inspectors have been investigating conditions in the Twine Company factory ever since Commissioner Skeffington took office three months ago. But our case cannot be discussed at this time. At the proper time it will be brought up in Federal court."

Mayor Curley is said to have characterized conditions at the factory as "disgraceful and deplorable" and to have charged that 300 girls were imported by this factory. He charged they were paid $6 a week, with $1 deducted for their fare to this country and that "150 of these girls have gone wrong and 15 per cent. of them have become insane."

His plan was to appoint Mrs. Steinauer as policewoman to investigate this factory. Mrs. Steinauer declares Mayor Curley is correct in his charges, while John H. Ross of Hingham, president of the company, denies that any such number of girls was ever imported. He says:

"We have never employed more than 200 hands altogether. We imported some girls from Ireland several years ago, but there were only six in the party. We have never imported any since. As far as we are concerned, the Mayor is welcome to send policewomen here. We'll give them all the assistance we can."

The present agitation over the company's factory dates back more than a year ago when a girl named Mary Rooney, seventeen years old, was found by the AMERICAN and charged that she was brought to this country together with ten others to work for this company, and later discharged and driven almost to desperation by want. She said she lived in Belfast, answered an advertisement in a Belfast paper, and was shown pictures of girls working in a model factory and promised $8 a week if she would come to this country. She came, with the others, she said, worked first in Newark and then here. She concluded:

"The boasted luxuries that were pointed out to me as an incentive to get me and other girls to come here tricked and trapped me. Ireland is a better place than an American factory, any day."

IMMIGRATION STATION A TRAP, OFFICIALS SAY

The immigration station on Long Wharf is such a firetrap and is so cut off from the street front by other buildings that, on two occasions at least, frightened immigrants have been rushed out the back way aboard the United States revenue cutter Winnisimmet to make sure of their safety when fire was raging between the station and the street.

This point was emphasized by a high immigration official today in confirming Mrs. Kate Waller Barrett's denunciation of the station as an inexcusable firetrap.

It is well understood by immigration officials, Boston city officials and others familiar with fire hazards that if the station were not United States property it would not be allowed to continue twenty-four hours longer under its present conditions. But, as it is Federal property, the city and State are both helpless.

When Mrs. Barrett's condemnation of the station was put up to an immigration official today the latter said:

"It is all so. At times when we have had over 300 detained immigrants crowded into these narrow, pitch-pine dormitories, there have been moments of great anxiety for those in charge.

STATION DENOUNCED.

"Eight years ago Marcus Braun of New York, who was investigating immigration conditions for ex-President Roosevelt, denounced this station as a dangerous fire trap.

"Two years later Messrs. Neil and McReynolds came on for the President and investigated. They turned in a written report, condemning this station in the strongest terms as an unsafe building for the purpose for which it was used.

"Frank P. Sargent, ex-commissioner-general of immigration, and his successor, Commissioner O'Keefe, greatly feared some dreadful accident would happen here and they cautioned us to be constantly on our guard, which we always are.

"On two occasions there have been fires on Long Wharf which threatened to cut off the station from the main land. Immigrants have been hurriedly rushed out of the building and aboard the United States revenue cutter Winnisimmet and then over to a safe spot in the harbor.

GUARD NIGHT AND DAY.

"Ex-Commissioner-General Sargent requires us to keep an inspector on duty at the station all night, in charge of the night watchmen, matrons and other employes of lesser rank, in order to have a responsible party in the station in case of fire.

"This is being done today and there is no reason for the presence of an inspector in the building at night, except this danger of fire.

"For several years there has been an appropriation for the new immigrant station. The government owns a site in East Boston. But the matter keeps hanging fire and nothing is done. There is no question about the dangers of the present station, or the need of immediate action."

False Signatures on Papers Alleged; Two Men Arrested

After a two-day search for men, who he claims, forged signatures to his nomination papers for the City Council, Augustus Seaver of No. 113 Worcester street, South End, caused the arrests of Jeremiah J. Cunningham, twenty-three of No. 113 Trenton street, and Thomas Wakeley, twenty-three of No. 92 Morris street, both of East Boston, on a charge of stealing $10 from him.

Seaver claims that he engaged the men to secure signatures. He saw the men on Newspaper row and pointed them out to a patrolman, who grabbed Wakeley. Cunningham ran down Washington street to Court and was captured in front of Young's Hotel.

Make U. S. Test of of Hammond Radio Boat

GLOUCESTER, Nov. 25.—History is being made today in Freshwater Cove, off the John Hays Hammond wireless laboratory, where four officers from the government War Department are witnessing tests of the radio operated boat, the Natalie, to determine whether the government will accept this marvelous invention of young Hammond.

The Natalie tests are held in lieu of tests with a torpedo for which plans have been made and contracts let. This torpedo has an explosive carrying capacity nearly ten times as great as the ordinary military torpedo in use today. No dreadnought could survive impact with this projectile. It is operated from a land shore station by wireless waves.

Any attempt to interfere with it with hostile wireless waves or to avoid it at night by means of searchlights acts as a boomerang upon the enemy since the wireless torpedo has two masts, one of which is equipped with selenium "eyes," which causes the projectile to turn and face any light thrown upon it, the other having a curious twin plane invention, which causes the torpedo to be attracted instead of repelled by any interfering wireless wave.

Constable Gets Extra Costs for Chasing Heifer

BANGOR, Me., Nov. 25.—When a constable has extra trouble serving a writ of replevin on a heifer, he (the constable) must be allowed extra costs, under a decision of Judge Blanchard in the local court. Constable Skeffington Kelso of Holdington told the court these things happened when he went out to replevin a heifer in connection with a civil suit:

Animal led him merry chase, through four miles of swamp.

Heifer circuited a mountain.

Ugly dog held up capture of heifer for two hours.

Kelso broke through ice twice.

Also stepped into a mink trap.

Lost his jackknife.

And not only tore his clothing, ruined his shoes and lost a lot of time, but was held up to derision by a young woman who wrote a funny poem about his chase and read it at a grange meeting.

91 CHAMPIONS ARE ENTERED AT THE EASTERN DOG SHOW

Mrs. Walter T. Stern of New York, with her Scottish terrier, Bapton Beryl. This terrier has taken seven championships in Europe.

New York society people compared notes with Boston society people about their dogs at the Eastern Dog Show, resumed in Mechanics building today. Ninety champion dogs are entered, a record number.

Mrs. Walter T. Stern of New York found her Scottish terrier, Bapton Beryl, bred in Bapton, England, much admired. She has taken seven championships abroad and came to America last December.

Sister Mary, a Yorkshire terrier owned by Mrs. M. B. Freshell of Brookline, has already to her credit twelve blue ribbons. It is the only vegetarian in the show. Sister Mary's mistress is head of the Millennium Guild (vegetarian) of Boston.

Cleon is the smallest stud dog of the English Toy Blenheim type. He weighs nine and a half pounds and is owned by Oliver Bowden of Haverhill.

LAWSON DOGS SHOWN.

Great Bayard of Merton, a large collie from the Blydale Kennels, Brighton, has won 101 prizes in England. He measures twenty-five and a half inches in height and his head is twelve inches in length.

Mrs. Arnold Lawson of Egypt is showing a French bull and Pekingese. Dreamwold Cribbage, the property of Thomas W. Lawson, has practically beaten everything in America of all breeds.

Dreamwold Dominion, son of the prize bulldog Dreamwold Blunderbuss, of Thomas W. Lawson's Egypt kennels, strenuously objected to being chained in his booth. He has never been under a leash before, according to his trainer, and it was his first appearance at a dog show, so it required constant attention to keep him from dragging his moorings. He is to compete for the novice prize with Harvey L. Maxwell's Beelzebub and Fred P. Graves' Quality Street.

One of the little Pomeranians causing favorable comment is Miss Barbara Paul's Orange Pip. It is one of the most attractive dogs of that breed.

Optimist, a Boston terrier, has won fifteen firsts. It is well known in all New England shows. Its puppy, Lady Betty, has taken the first in this show.

SMALLEST DOG WINNER.

The smallest dog in the show is Little Nemo, weighing one and three-quarters pounds. It is the recipient of twenty prizes and belongs to Mrs. Margaret Foley.

Champion Slumber, a prize sheep dog belonging to Mrs. Tyler Morse of Westbury, N. Y., was the best dog in the New York show, of all breeds, and is one of the drawing cards. It is four years old.

Chow-chows and toy spaniels belonging to Mrs. [illegible] Hosen of Greenage, Fairfield, Ct., are creating much interest at the show.

Boston terriers' night is the attraction this evening.

On Thanksgiving Day at 3 p. m. there will be fourteen whippet races. A rubber floor will be laid from the main entrance to the reserved seat section, a distance of more than 100 yards. This will be protected to standards with ropes.

The starts will be in heats of two each. This is the first time that a whippet race has been held indoors.

The parade of the ladies' champions will also take place tomorrow. The judging of the different ladies' kennels will take place in the morning by Frank B. Day.

"MIGHT TRY TO INVADE CANADA VIA BOSTON"

Professor [illegible] of Harvard, writing in the Harvard Crimson, says that if Germany were to cripple England's navy, an attempted invasion by the Kaiser of Canada by way of New York or Boston would not be impossible. He writes:

"Should the naval power of England collapse—a most unlikely event—the British Empire would everywhere be exposed to German attack. Among the parts of the empire the exposed would be Canada. Indeed, if I am not in error, the newspapers have lately attributed to the German Ambassador at Washington certain conjectures as to how the Monroe Doctrine should be interpreted if an attack on Canada should occur.

"Canada is evidently assailable not only through her own ports, but through ours. The accident of American neutrality need no more interfere with German plans than the accident of Belgian did. That a German military expedition against Canada by way of Boston or New York might probably be disastrous is no reason why it should not be attempted. That America would permit it is unthinkable. Such indemnities as might consequently be demanded from Boston and New York would be highly desirable, in the present state of German national expenses."

Observe Birth Date f John Harvard

These exercises were in charge of C. W. Lane. The Harvard Glee Club sang and a committee of seniors then placed a laurel wreath at the base of the statue. The Rev. C. W. Dandruffy Heads Become Hairless

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails. Advertisement.

SPIRIT OF XMAS IN LETTERS

amount I herewith enclose my check. Yours very truly,
GUY W. COX.

ON THE HIGH SPEED.

Mr. Cox' check for $10 accompanied his letter. Some people assent to a proposition, then on second thought they back out. But Mr. Cox, on second thought, goes ahead, "on the high speed," as our automobile friend might express it.

Mayor Timothy W. Good of Cambridge esteems the "Give a Basket" plan a worthy one, as shown by the following letter:

> Office of the Mayor, Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 23, 1914.
> Christmas Editor, AMERICAN:
> I enclose herewith my check for ten ($10.00) dollars, for your Christmas Charity Fund, and only regret that I cannot give a larger check, as the cause is a worthy one. Yours truly.
> TIMOTHY W. GOOD, Mayor.

The union cigar-makers are right with the "Give a Basket" movement. They write:

> Cigarmakers' I. U., No. 97
> 11 Appleton street, Boston,
> Nov. 18, 1914.
> Editor AMERICAN—Enclosed please find check for two dollars for a Christmas basket donated by the Label Committee of Cigarmakers' Union. Very respectfully
> HENRY ABRAHAMS, secretary.

MISSION HEAD TALKS.

Superintendent C. L. D. Younkin of the North End Mission, who knows conditions among the poor, makes this statement:

> A Christmas basket will be a great blessing to many this year who find themselves in pinched condition. There are many people living on short rations.
>
> Let us help to brighten their lives this Christmas. A basket of goodies would be acceptable to these people. I know of several very worthy families, who through no fault of their own have felt the sting of poverty. This movement on the part of a great newspaper like the Boston AMERICAN ought to make hundreds think they should give two dollars to make some family feel the Christmas cheer. Why there are so many men in this city who think nothing of spending two dollars for cigars at a time. Let them send that amount to the Boston AMERICAN and help along this great cause.

PORT SURVEYOR WRITES.

Joseph A. Maynard, Surveyor of the Port, writes a strong and sympathetic endorsement of the work, in these words:

> Christmas Editor, American.
> Dear Sir:
> I am very happy to have the privilege of helping to make Christmas a little more cheerful and brighter for some of those less fortunate than the rest of us—and I highly commend the Boston AMERICAN and its enterprising and public-spirited owner, Mr. Hearst, for this added manifestation of his deep interest in the unfortunate, the lowly and the oppressed — for whom the AMERICAN has ever stood as a champion.
>
> I trust that all who read the pathetic appeals printed in your columns, will catch the spirit of this splendid movement and respond as generously as they can.
>
> Enclosed please find check covering my offering.
> Very truly yours,
> JOSEPH A. MAYNARD,
> Surveyor.

Then there is the other side of the story—the letters from poor people to the Christmas Editor, asking for a Christmas dinner.

These letters are indescribably touching. Some are written by children. If any composition touches the heart quicker than the letter of a child appealing for a little Christmas cheer, then the Christmas Editor has yet to find it.

A PITIABLE APPEAL.

A girl writes this pitiable appeal:

> I have a blind father. Mama is struggling to keep home for us and myself. As you are helping people, kindly remember our family and we shall appreciate your kindness.

A letter comes from South Boston, written in childish pencil scrawl. It is addressed to Santa Claus, and reads:

> Iam a little girl ten years old. My father works but he does not make much money. I wish you would send me some toys. There is ten in my family. My brothers and sisters want some toys, but they do not know what to write for.
>
> IF YOU HAVE ANY LEFT, I wish you would send me a Christmas dinner, and, if you please, would you send me a few dresses and a pair of shoes."

Notice the modest request for a dinner—"If you have any left."

Another little girl writes:

WANTS "SOMTING TO WEAR.

> Dear Boston AMERICAN:
> I am a little girl of eleven years old. I have three sisters and six brothers. My father is laid up with a broken hand and my mother started to go to work last Thursday, and gets $6 a week. And I hope you will give me a Happy Christmas for I like somting for to wear.

A widow writes:

> Am a widow with two children and would be pleased to have a Christmas basket, also a few warm things for the children, aged ten years.

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRISON.

On Friday next automobiles will drive the entire distance from New York to Frisco over the Lincoln Highway. This is to be done in its entirety not by any one individual man but rather by relays. From certain particular points along the highway the highway consuls will drive their cars to next point west and report to the headquarters of the association by wire at the completion of their lap.

The run is held to prove to the motoring public that the Lincoln Highway is in fit condition for transcontinental travel. This trip will be the last official run of the season.

The arrival of the latest White car, known as model 45, yesterday, placed Manager J. S. Hathaway and his sales force in a particularly happy frame of mind. The latest car has what is termed the "finally-perfect streamline body," and is completely equipped with all that goes to make a car a leader in beauty, luxury and distinction. One feature of the car is the elimination of the conventional back of the front seat—always awkward in appearance—giving to the car a particularly distinctive and harmonious appearance.

The Mitchell light four stock car, which recently created the wonderful record of travelling 7,500 miles in thirty days over all sorts and conditions of roads with its bonnet sealed and without requiring any adjustment whatsoever, is now on exhibition in the Boylston street salesrooms of the Pope-Hartford Company of Boston. The car arrived here yesterday morning and since has attracted no end of attention. Since the completion of its run this car has received no attention from the factory experts or local repairmen and the car today is fully as capable of going out and doing thousands of miles as it was prior to the start of it record-breaking trip.

General Sales Manager C. E. Gibson, of the Empire Automobile Company of Indianapolis, accompanied by Eastern Sales Manager Tommy Forbes, is spending a few days in this city. Mr. Gibson is well pleased with business conditions as a whole and he can see no reason why the motor industry should suffer any decline as the result of the European conditions.

19 of Harvard's Phi Beta Kappas Bay State Men

Nineteen of the thirty men just admitted into membership in Harvard's Chapter of that society of scholars, the Phi Beta Kappa, are men whose homes are in Massachusetts. Boston has the most number of representatives, five in number.

It is rarely an athlete of prominence forges his way into this fraternity of "grinds," but this year proved a notable exception. T. Jefferson Coolidge, Jr., of Boston, whose ninety-eight-yard run scored Harvard's third touchdown in the Yale game, and psychologically started the Blue well on its downward path, is one of the twenty-two seniors admitted. Robert C. Curtis, also of a prominent Boston family and a Yale game veteran, was one of the eight juniors tapped. H. L. F. Kreger, cox of the varsity crew, also was of the junior entries. The new Phi Beta Kappa members follow:

Juniors—Francis Boyer, Gwynedd Valley, Pa.; R. C. Curtis, Boston; R. Cutler, Brookline; Henry Epstein, Brooklyn, N. Y.; H. L. F. Kreger, Fairfield, Me.; Cloyd Laporte, St. Louis; Kenneth B. Murdock, Chestnut Hill; Lawrence D. Steefel, Rochester, N. Y.

POULTRY TRUST FOE SHOT DOWN LIKE ROSENTHAL

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—All the machinery of the District Attorney's office, headed by Governor-elect Charles S. Whitman and aided by the entire police department of New York, is at work today collecting every iota of evidence of the murder of Barnett Baff, wealthy poultryman and influential foe of the so-called "Poultry Trust."

In the killing of Baff last night at the door of his place of business and in the presence of scores of people is seen a dramatic repetition of the shooting of Herman Rosenthal. The two tragedies have so many features in common that already last night's "public assassination" has been laid to the system.

The assassins, for there were two of them, escaped in an automobile which was waiting near by with the engine running at high speed. Meagre description of them or the big black touring car they used was obtained by the police, but almost instantly the search for the assassins was centred in the direction of the poultry trust.

Baff's tragic death was not unexpected by him. For half a dozen years, during which he always fought the band of dealers who pushed up the prices of poultry, Baff has lived in deadly fear of his life. Several attempts were made to kill him.

The most notable was on January 20, 1910, when Moses Gootman, a wealthy shirt waist manufacturer, who lived only two doors from where the Baffs lived at the time, was killed during the night by a burglar, who also shot one of the Gootman's sons.

Baff was lured to his death by a false message. It was shortly after six o'clock when he left his establishment at Nos. 60 and 64 Thompson avenue in West Washington market, to visit his place on Thirteenth avenue. While in the latter place some one entered and said to him:

"Mr. Baff, you are wanted down at the corner."

Ignorant of the peril which awaited him, Baff crossed over the street and walked southward toward Gansevoort street. He was directly in front of the Brooklyn poultry house, No. 18 Thirteenth avenue, when two men walked up behind him. One of them said something which caused the poultry dealer to turn around. As he did, one of the men drew a revolver and fired two shots into his back.

OPTIMISTICS.

Since the war broke out it is estimated that this country has supplied Europe with 2,000,000 pounds of hospital cotton.

* * *

American mills which can make knit goods have enough export orders on hand to keep them busy for several months.

* * *

It is reported from Washington that $87,000,000 of emergency currency has been retired. Nearly $70,000,000 has been retired by New York banks. They put $3,378,000 out of circulation on Monday.

* * *

From October 1 to November 18 products exported from the chief ports of this country totalled $244,407,520 in value or $60,179,115 more than imports.

* * *

Cotton buying in Texas by Japanese interests is estimated at 150,000 bales so far this season. The cotton is being shipped from Galveston through the Panama Canal.

* * *

Two thousand men, laid off last Spring, have been put at work at the South Chicago plant of the Illinois Steel Company. It is believed the plant will soon be running on a capacity basis.

* * *

Wheat exports from New York since July 1 are estimated to total about 150,000,000 bushels.

* * *

The Canadian Pacific Railroad was not deterred by the war from having four steamships built on the Clyde. The Missanable has been completed, the Metagama has just been launched and the Princess Margaret and Princess Irene will be used in Pacific Coast service.

* * *

The British war department has placed a $15,000,000 wagon and harness order with the Studebaker corporation.

* * *

Although the steel trade is quiet, workers in that industry are saving money. President Hay of the Gary State Bank says: "Three thousand depositors in our savings department have more than $500,000 to their credit and deposits continue to exceed withdrawals.

SCITUATE FOLK ASK WILSON TO URGE WAR END

An appeal to President Wilson "to speak to the warring people of Europe, the strongest possible word for common sense, civilization and humanity," is contained in a petition from the congregation of the First Parish Church of Scituate. The petition asks him to urge the cessation of hostilities in the following words:

> As a small congregation of plain men and women, we feel our utter powerlessness in the presence of the appalling calamity in which the present war is involving mankind. But we are conscious of belonging to a great nation, whose influence in world affairs is mighty.
>
> We, therefore, earnestly petition you, as spokesman for this neutral nation, to appeal to the peoples now at war for an immediate cessation of hostilities, in order that the international conference, by means of which existing controversies must eventually be settled, may begin at once.
>
> There are reasons why our country should take a strong initiative in favor of immediate peace, nor wait to be formally asked to mediate. An appeal to reason is always in order.
>
> It is not simply in the interest of civilization and of humanity as a whole that our nation has a right and a duty to speak in the present crisis.
>
> Worse by far than our financial loss is the moral deterioration which is unmistakably manifesting itself among us as the natural consequences of this war. Our over-taxed sympathies are becoming blunted to its horrors, and we seem to be beginning to regard it as a football game on a colossal scale, in which we are eager to see points scored before time is called.
>
> Remembering that the time draws near the anniversary of the birth of Christ, with its powerful suggestion of peace and good will, we implore you, Mr. President, to disregard precedents in an unprecedented situation, and speak to the warring peoples, through their governments, your strongest possible word for common sense, for civilization, for humanity, for the Christmas spirit of all-embracing love.

CHARGE JOYCE STOLE $9,692 FROM MEDFORD

Allston P. Joyce, former city clerk of Medford, is arraigned in the district court today, following his arrest on a charge of stealing $9,692.04 from the city funds.

In the latter part of September, Joyce confessed that he had been stealing from the cemetery department funds, of which he had been secretary to the board of trustees for sixteen years. At that time he resigned and also admitted to Mayor Taylor and City Solicitor Elder that he had taken fees of various kinds that he had received as city clerk during the past fifteen years.

Since that time the State Bureau of Statistics and Labor has been auditing the books, which show a deficit of almost $10,000, according to their report, which was filed yesterday. This report only covers a period of seven years.

District Attorney Corcoran then ordered State Officer Silas B. Smith to arrest Joyce. Bail was fixed at $10,000, but was not received. When the officers arrested him he was at the house of his son on Burdget street.

According to the report there is missing from the cemetery department $6,349.28; from the city clerk's department $3,633.46; from the charity trust funds of the city $231.81.

It is also reported that Joyce showed much dexterity in manipulating his books. The destruction of a number of accounts, receipt and stub books make it practically impossible to trace a large amount of fees and other funds he received.

Joyce is sixty-one years of age and was city clerk for twenty-one years.

HAMMER GERMANS IN FLIGHT FROM POLAND

which the French cruiser Montcalm is said to have suffered losses in saving the Canadian gunboat Rainbow, now in dry dock, driving away the German cruisers Leipsic and Nurmberg.

The Montcalm is said to have disabled the Leipsic.

Of the rout of the German army under Von Hindenberg, Petrograd dispatches say today that the Russians continue to deliver smashing blows on the foe along the Czestochowa-Cracow front and have captured the trenches at many points. The southern Russian army is keeping pace with the army that forced the Germans to retreat from their line northwest of Lodz. The central Russian army has pierced the German lines and effected a junction with the southern forces along a line running northward through Piaski (south of Lodz).

According to the Petrograd official Army Messenger, the Russian cavalry slaughtered a large force of German infantry that was driven into the swamp north of Lodz. The Germans refused to surrender and fought until the last man was dead. The Cossacks took in this conflict two batteries of heavy cannon.

"Despite the continued successes of the Russian troops, the victory over the Germans is not yet complete," the Army Messenger says. "Great bodies of German troops have fled in disorder into Silesia, but the veteran troops of the enemy are protecting the flight of those Landwehr soldiers who have been broken up by the dashing attacks of our forces. Terrific fighting has been accompanied by terrific slaugher."

GRAND DUKE DIMITRI WOUNDED.

No attempt is made in Petrograd to minimize the fact that the Russian losses have also been heavy in the fighting that has been raging in Poland. Numerous members of the Russian nobility have been killed or wounded. Grand Duke Dimitri, son of Grand Duke Paul Alexander, was severely wounded while leading his troops against the German cavalry on the Warthe River.

Vienna's version of the situation in Poland is reflected in an official dispatch today announcing the capture of important positions from the Russians in southwestern Poland, and adds that there are now 110,000 prisoners of war interned in Austria.

A Lisbon dispatch says the Portuguese Congress has decided Portugal should co-operate with the allies when it considers the step necessary. The Minister of War will issue a decree for partial mobilization of the army.

The Turkish government has announced that the Suez Canal will be kept open for traffic, according to semi-official dispatches from Rome.

STORY OF NAVAL ATTACK.

How the allies' airmen co-operated in the naval attack on German coastal positions is told by the AMERICAN-London Times Sluis correspondent, who cables:

"The Anglo-French fleet repeatedly bombarded the German fortified places along the Belgian coast, especially the German artillery positions.

"Immediately after dawn English airmen reconnoitered the coast where the German artillery was concealed with extraordinary cleverness, being partly buried in the slopes of sand dunes with the gun muzzles pointing seaward.

"After the airmen returned to the allies' lines, the latter made attacks on the German infantry near Nieuport, in conjunction with a Franco-English squadron, which, continually firing, approached the coast.

"The Germans maintained an uninterrupted gun fire on the approaching troops and squadron, which consisted of three small cruisers and a number of destroyers and gunboats.

"Early in the forenoon a second small fleet appeared and bombarded the region between Ostend and Wenduyne. Neither here nor near Nieuport were any decisive advantages gained for either party.

"Two German batteries were silenced near Westende, but the Franco-British squadron operating there was obliged to withdraw, owing to the frequently accurate and always furious German fire, whereby one torpedo destroyer was seriously damaged.

ZEEBRUGGE PARTLY IN FLAMES.

"The second squadron attacked Zeebrugge, evidently with the object of destroying the harbor for submarines recently made by the Germans.

"Before evening the coke sheds and electric works were set on fire by the bombardment, as was also the Palace Hotel. A church tower at Heyst was severely damaged by the terrific bombardment, and the same is reported respecting the locks at Zeebrugge and adjacent places, which were terribly damaged by the fire. Many harbor works have been ruined on the German coast.

"The fire was necessarily suspended when the submarines attacked the British squadron, which skirmished slightly with the German submarines, but slowly withdrew, favored by mist and darkness.

"Zeerbrugge is partly in flames and the population fled. Many private houses were destroyed."

The London Mail's Rotterdam correspondent says the Solway works near the Bruges ship canal at Zeebrugge are in ruins, and six submarines brought there in sections destroyed. The coast guard buildings and public schools were razed by the British fire. Military trains were blown to fragments.

The railway and iron works were blown up.

AUSTRIAN.

Austrian Coat of Arms.

VIENNA, Nov. 25.—Fighting in Russian Poland is continuing energetically on both sides. Our troops have captured several important positions near Wolbrom (northwest of Cracow) and also on both sides of the Pilica River. Numerous prisoners have been taken. The situation is otherwise unchanged. In Austria at present there are 110,000 prisoners of war, of whom 1,000 are officers.

In the fighting in Poland the effect of our heavy artillery has again been satisfactory. Prisoners state that it is shaking the enemy's nerves. The shells are driving the Russians in all directions.

ISADORA DUNCAN BACK FROM WAR NURSING; QUITS STAGE FOREVER

Mme. Duncan, classic dancer, who has been nursing wounded soldiers in France, and whose dancing school near Paris has been turned into a Red Cross hospital.

Plans to Open School for Teaching Art of Beauty to Children.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Mme. Isadora Duncan, the California dance interpreter, has returned to this city, where she first won fame. Since she was seen here, at the Metropolitan, Mme. Duncan has seen many lands and cities. She has also played her part in certain tragedies. One—the great war—has not yet reached its end. Another, of a private nature, aroused world-wide sympathy over a year ago. It led to the retirement, it may be forever, of Mme. Duncan from the stage. And, for a time, it changed her from an artist to a nurse and a lay sister of charity.

When she was seen walking down the gang plank of the Franconia at the Cunard docks, Mme. Duncan wore a sable coat, a becoming little black and silver toque and a white veil.

"It has been such a dull, uneventful trip," said the charming dancer, to a representative of the AMERICAN. "We were not even captured by a German cruiser.

"I have been nursing since the war began. My school near Paris, as you have heard, has been transformed into a Red Cross hospital. My Neuilly studio is now a children's refuge. For months past I have been tending the sick and wounded at the Deauville casino, in Normandy. The war made it impossible for me to keep my pupils in the old, distracted world, so I sent them over here.

"When I heard that my poor children were detained at Ellis Island I felt—I knew—that I should have to join them here.

"Yes, one of the reasons for my leaving France was to enlarge my school. I hope before long to have fifty little students under me. It will be easier, I believe, to find the pupils I need in this country than in Europe.

"You know the object of the art which I shall teach, as I have taught before. It is—beauty. In the development of children and their movements one may see a harmonious rhythm. It is the expression of an ever-growing life. To educate a child we should all understand that the most sure and charming course is to accustom it to graceful movements. They will in the long run awake a deep and fervent love of all things lovely.

"Shall I dance here? Alas, no. Or so I think. Do I look as if I could go back to dancing?"

AUSTRIANS EXECUTE 3 U. S. CITIZENS

OAKLAND, Cal., Nov. 25.—According to a letter received here from the Rev. L. Magud, three United States citizens have been executed by Austrian officials at Cattaro, Dalmatia. One of the victims was a fourteen-year-old boy, son of Milo S. Medin of this city. The executions took place in the public square of Cattaro.

The boy was Emil Medin. He was born in Oakland and went to Dalmatia two years ago to visit his grandmother, who lives in Castallastva, some distance from Cattaro. The others executed were Louis Vootich and John Ragenovich, who, Magud asserts, were naturalized citizens of the United States and residents of San Francisco.

Milo S. Medin has been a resident of San Diego for five or six years. He said today that through attorneys he has brought the execution of his son to the attention of Secretary of State Bryan and been assured that a rigid investigation would be made.

FACE DISFIGURED WITH ECZEMA

Itching and Burning So Bad Scratched and Irritated. Could Not Rest. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Entirely Well.

Lock Box 264, Pittsfield, Me.—"My eczema broke out with a rash and was very red. It looked as though the blood was coming through the skin. The itching and burning were so bad that I scratched and irritated it until they did my hands up. My face was disfigured so I would not be seen. The itching and burning kept me from rest at night and it seemed as though I would go out of my head.

"I tried a good many things and they seemed to make it worse instead of better. I was told to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment and the first time I used them I went to bed and had a good night's sleep. I put the Ointment on nights before going to bed and used the Soap to wash with. I was entirely well in two weeks and I have not been troubled with eczema since." (Signed) Mrs. Leigh B. Trafton, Mar. 20, 1914.

MISS ANGLIN STARS IN PLAY AT HOLLIS ST.

By FREDERICK JOHNS

Genius never grows old. Oscar Wilde's little masterpiece, "Lady Windermere's Fan," in which Margaret Anglin has returned to Boston, might have been written yesterday, it is so fresh, so sparkling, so completely delightful.

Here is a play for which one need not apologize. You do not feel obliged to say: "It is a strong play with fine theme, only the first act isn't necessary, the second [illegible] and the third impossible." It is not a strong play. It is a trifle, but it is an exquisite bit of workmanship, a jewel of a comedy, fashioned by a master's hand.

"Lady Windermere's Fan" is nearly a quarter of a century old, and has not been presented in Boston for a long time. To most of those who saw it last night at the Hollis it was a complete novelty. There have been so many plays about a jealous wife who comes so near eloping as to reach her lover's rooms before she repents and decides to return to her husband, that the third act may seem somewhat trite, but not so many playwrights had used this theme when Wilde wrote his comedy. And after all it is not so much the story as the treatment of it, the style, the superb dialogue, the character painting which make this so well worth while.

Margaret Anglin has found in the role of Mrs. Erlynne, the erring woman who endeavors to re-enter society by blackmailing her son-in-law, a part which reveals her exceptional talents in a new light. Mrs. Erlynne is unscrupulous but she does love her daughter, who is blissfully unconscious of her mother's existence. To shield his wife, the son-in-law submits to the exactions of the mother, until society couples their names, and the wife hears of it.

Of course there is a would-be lover to whom she can turn and she turns. Then the mother love takes command of Mrs. Erlynne. She follows her daughter to the man's apartment, and despite the hatred the girl has for her supposed rival succeeds in persuading her to return to her husband—too late. A party of men arrive. Mrs. Erlynne makes her sacrifice when Lady Windermere's Fan is discovered lying on a table, and reveals herself, while the daughter escapes.

Of course she is disgraced, but she accepts it philosophically, and without revealing her identity in the last act admonishes the humble and repentant wife before she departs from the play. It is a big part, and one which Miss Anglin plays better than anybody else that I can think of.

Her company is extremely good. It is very large and even the smallest parts are important character bits not to be entrusted to ordinary actors. Leonard Willey, Stanley Dark, Sidney Greenstreet, Harry Redding, Wallace Widdecumbe and Donald Cameron, among the men, deserve great commendation and Florence Carpenter as Lady Windermere plays with intelligence, discretion and authority, which is very pleasant. Ruth Holt Boucicault and Carolyn Darling stand out among the women.

GERTRUDE HITZ, leading woman in "The Road to Happiness."

Gertrude Hitz, the young leading woman with William Hodge in "The Road to Happiness" at the Wilbur Theatre, has just received a big temptation to desert the dramatic field for the career of a piano virtuoso.

Miss Hitz has received a splendid offer from Professor Greenwold of Cleveland to enter next year upon a coast to coast tour in the concert field. He believes that she can make as great a name for herself as a pianist as any American born player on that instrument has yet achieved.

It was under Professor Greenwold that Miss Hitz took her original lessons and, notwithstanding all the arduous duties of her stage life she has continued to apply herself to her musical studies. Even here in Boston, while enacting the role of Viola in "The Road to Happiness," she is every day busy at her practice with a teacher who studied under MacDowell and Lettischitki.

TURKEYS MAY JUMP TO 45 CENTS TODAY

The prices of turkeys may jump to forty-five cents a pound when the rush of shoppers to the markets starts today. Local marketmen say any increase in prices will be due to the shortage of the supply.

This shortage is caused, they say, by the holding back by New York and Vermont drovers in the hope of getting "famine prices," and the curtailment of Western shipments because of the turmoil over the foot and mouth disease.

When the markets opened today northern turkeys were selling at thirty-eight to forty cents a pound. Western turkeys were selling at thirty-three cents, and at about twenty-eight cents for the inferior grades. The "common, ordinary turkey" sold at twenty-five cents.

The Salvation Army will today distribute hundreds of baskets of Thanksgiving dinners all over the city. Work of preparing a dinner for 1,500 persons was carried on all day at the Army headquarters by Colonel Gifford and a corps of assistants.

Officials of the Boston Industrial Home are preparing to serve 450 poor men and women. The Volunteers of America will today distribute 250 dinners at their rooms at No. 23 Howard street.

A dinner for at least 200 of the "down and out" will be given by the West End Rescue Mission at No. 42 Green street, tomorrow.

BASEBALL MOGULS TO
FOR ANNUAL MEETING

BIG CROWDS EXPECTED TO ATTEND THE ANNUAL SCHOOL GAMES TOMORROW

BASEBALL MEN TO GATHER FOR BIG MEETING

Notices from National League headquarters are now in the mails calling the annual meeting for December 8 at New York. President Barrow, of the International League, in order to have the club owners of his organization on hand at the same time, has called a meeting for December 7. The National Leaguers will hold forth at the Waldorf-Astoria, while the Internationals will gather at the Hotel Imperial.

In the meantime a special meeting of the Federal League will convene at Chicago so that by the time the National and International Leagues meet it will be pretty definitely known whether peace or war will prevail in baseball.

Just now there is a decided lull in peace proceedings. The failure of Weeghman, owner of the Chicago Feds to take up an option he had on the Chicago Nationals, stopped all negotiations as Charles P. Taft, owner of the Cubs refused to extend the option Weeghman held.

President Ban Johnson, of the American League, will be in New York at the time set for the National League meeting. He is a member of the National Commission, of which Garry Herrmann, of Cincinnati and President Tener of the National League are the other two members. Mr. Johnson will be on hand to act with the other members of the commission in case there is anything doing in the peace line.

PEACE MEETING.

It is also likely that most of the club owners of the American Association will also be in New York at the time of the baseball conclave. The National, American and International Leagues and the American Association are the organizations which have suffered most as a result of the Federal League activities. If there is a chance for peace, the time set for the gathering of the big baseball men in New York is the time to arrange the details.

It is likely that the International League will seriously consider one or two changes in its circuit. Before the Federal League was born the International League was a strong, well-balanced organization except in two cities—Montreal and Jersey City. For several years the powers in the Barrow circuit had tried to shift the franchise in those two cities, but were not able to do so.

WRECKED BALTIMORE.

The Federal League started last season and simply wrecked the Baltimore club so that at the coming meeting plans will be considered to transfer the Baltimore franchise to Richmond, Va., or Syracuse, N. Y. The Jersey City club will likely be transfered to Brooklyn. Montreal will stay, as it seems advisable to dispose of the Baltimore matter first.

Another reason for allowing Montreal to stay is the fact that Sammy Lichtenstein, who has always been a loyal follower of the International League and a liberal spender of money, has recently acquired all the stock in the Montreal club and will now be able to do as he pleases, without protests from partners. It is believed that he will put Montreal on the map in good shape.

J. J. Lannin, owner of the Red Sox, also owns the Providence club of the International League. He will doubtless attend the International League meeting on December 7.

PEACE WILL NOT BE MADE IN BASEBALL

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—In the face of all the baseball peace talk that is being uttered in various sections of the land, we reiterate today what we said something like three weeks ago: "Peace in the baseball world is about one year distant."

There can be no peace in the baseball world until all interests concerned are agreed on a certain plan. And there is no plan for general peace up before those interests now. No agreement has been reached—and no agreement will be reached for a year, at least, unless a miracle comes to pass.

The Federal League has named its terms. It wants full major league recognition for every one of its clubs. And that is something that Organized Baseball will not give it at this time. And there's the deadlock.

The plain facts of the case are these: Herrmann was empowered to offer the Cubs to Weeghman. Naturally, Weeghman listened to the proposition. But Herrmann's proposition had a lot of conditions—and those conditions are of the kind that render the chances of Weeghman accepting almost nil.

WEEGHMAN WANTS CUBS.

Weeghman, who seems to be the pivot around which the alleged "peace negotiations" are swinging, wants the Cubs, but it's bunk and nothing else for anyone to come out and say that Weeghman has closed a deal whereby he will take over the Cubs and drop his Federal League holdings. And it's bunk also for anyone to "report" that the Ward family, which owns the Brooklyn Federal League franchise, will purchase the New York Yankees or some other team in Organized Baseball, and quit the Federal League.

To get the Cubs, Weeghman would have to pay about $700,000. That's the very lowest price that the Cub owners will take, according to the best information. Weeghman hasn't that much loose money in the world, according to those who know him best.

WEEGHMAN WOULD LOSE.

But even if he did have the money, why should he want to buy the Cubs? Where could he make any money? If he bought the Cubs he would have two baseball clubs on his hands, two baseball parks and both in the same city. If Weeghman bought the Cubs and broke loose from his Federal League mooring, he would have two ball parks, two teams and one franchise. One of his ball parks would have to be sold for its land value only, which would mean a loss of at least $150,000 to Weeghman right at the start.

In the second place, if Weeghman elected to buy the Cubs he would contract himself to pay the salaries of twenty-five players who are under contract to the Cubs and he also would have to pay the salaries of the twenty-five men who are hooked to him by the Federal League contracts. Most of those Fed contracts have two years to run. The average salary for Weeghman's players is about $3,000 a year. That would mean $75,000 a year, or $150,000 in two years that Weeghman would have to pay without getting a dollar's worth of return from them.

It will be seen from this that if Weeghman decided to quit the Feds and buy the Cubs he would make himself liable to a loss of about $300,000 right at the start.

CUBS LOST MONEY.

But assuming that Weeghman could sell his Federal League club—a vague possibility—what assurance would he have when he got the Cubs that they would be moneymakers? In the old days the Cubs did make money. But those days are gone. The Cubs may do a "come-back"—but the chances are that they won't.

Weeghman, by purchasing the Cubs, would tie up at least $700,000 in the team. In these days of money stringency, any man can get ten per cent. intereest, by loaning out such a huge sum of money as $700,000. Furthermore, he would get an absolute guarantee that he would get that ten per cent. return—$70,000 in cash—every year.

But what guarantee would Weeghman have that the Cubs would make $70,000 for him each year, or even $7,000? The Cubs, according to the best information, lost about $10,000 last year. The interest loss on the club investment, at ten per cent., was just $70,000. So, if Weeghman had owned the Cubs last year he would not only have lost the intereest to which he was entitled, but $10,000 in cash besides—a loss of $80,000, in addition to the loss of time and labor.

TRY TO BREAK FEDERALS.

In some quarters the report is current that Herrmann's dickering with Weeghman is not intended to bring about peace in the Federal League, but that it's simply an effort on the part of Organized Baseball to wean Weeghman away from the Feds, and to later wean away the Ward family of Brooklyn. To get these two men away from the Feds is the big object of Organized Baseball at this time. Organized baseball believes that if Weeghman and the Wards desert the Federal League that the Federal structure will collapse. It believes that Weeghman and Ward are the real moneyed men in baseball.

If that's the plan of Organized Baseball, the plan will fail. In the first place, both Weeghman and the Wards are men of honor. They have business reputations that stand for integrity and fair dealing.

In the second place, the idea that exists that the Wards and Weeghman are the only moneyed men of the Federal League is erroneous to an extreme.

Brighton Elevens in Holiday Game

A rugged game is expected tomorrow when the Lincolns and Elkos of Brighton clash for the championship at Murray Park, Brighton. Both teams have ex-college and high school stars playing for them, Fleming McGovern and McCloskey from Boston College play with the Elkos, while Burke, Smith, Harris and Cleary from Brighton High are playing with the Lincolns. Walter Lonergan, the former Red Sox player, is playing in the backfield for the Elkos.

The business men of Brighton are backing both teams and are giving each a brass band to furnish noise and music. Representative-elect Donahoe is in charge of the field committee and will place the ball in the field to begin play.

West End House Holds Big Run

The West End House of Boston will hold its fourth annual cross-country run on Thanksgiving Day at 3 p. m. There will be three classes, junior, intermediate and senior. The junior distance will be a half mile, the intermediate distance one mile and a half and the senior run one of four miles. Three cups will be awarded to the winners in each event.

West Point Team Ready for Middies

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 25.—The Army eleven was worked at a stiff pace for two hours, in further preparation for the contest with the Navy. A new field was laid out near the hotel, and although the going was heavy the coaches drove the teams through a long preliminary drill consisting of bucking, running down punts, a session at the blocking and tackling machines and dummy scrimmaging, finishing with a fast and snappy signal practice lasting a half hour.

Two teams went through the signal drill, Captain Pritchard driving one and Oliphant the other. Benedict, Van Fleet and Hodgson were the backs on the varsity, while Coffin, Ford and Booth made up the second string backfield.

Tufts Not to Have Seven This Season

Tufts will not be represented by a hockey team this season, according to an announcement made by Dean F. G. Wren of Tufts Athletic Advisory Board. The Medical and Dental School students may organize an independent team, and class sevens will be formed at the Medford branches.

DICK RUDOLPH INHERITED HIS GREAT ABILITY

Away back on August 15, 1889, there was a pitcher named Rudolph, who flashed across the baseball firmament like a long-tailed comet.

He pitched that long-to-be-remembered day, too, for the "Elite of the Pro-fesh," the "New York Press Gang," so-called, who walloped the very daylights out of the no less famous team—but of far less ability—the Actors' Nine. The latter called themselves a "nine," anyhow, but to an old-timer's recollection they numbered twenty or thereabouts.

The score of the game is lost in the dim and dusty past, but it goes without saying that the actors were beaten by a horribly big margin—so large, in fact that it would be a shame to print the figures, out of regard to those of the losing team who are now alive, and prominently so, and present day fans of the thirty-third degree as they were then.

But what we want to bring out is that the pitcher of the winning club was the father of "Our Dick" Rudolph, of he Bronx, who was the star twirler of the Boston Braves in the recent World's Series.

It was a little over a week ago that Dick fired the pistol that started the bicycle race at Madison Square Garden, New York, and when a man is chosen to perform that highly prominent act he is considered by the unwritten law of sports to be the most distinguished personage in sporting circles and the most talked of man of the hour. Such one is Dick Rudolph.

INHERITED ABILITY.

And Dick's sire, having also been a winning pitcher, the World's Series hero must have derived his pitching ability by inheriting it.

Yes, siree, Dick just came to his honors naturally, so that Rudolph senior's glory is not reflected—he is entitled to an equal share with Dick—a fifty-fifty divvy. That is what they think at home, anyhow, and what the head of the family says goes.

Papa Rudolph is very proud of that great victory of August 15, 1889, and delights to talk about it. He won many more games than that, of course, but that was the victory that he gloats over and on the strength of it he used to coach and advise his worthy son how to pitch. There was not a game that Dick pitched in his youthful days at which his father was not on hand, and it is said the old woodshed was the scene of much corrective admonition with a barrel stave as an enforcer.

FATHER TAKES CREDIT.

But be that as it may, Dick was developed into the biggest pitcher star of the country, and the vigorous and persistent Rudolph pater takes due credit, as he is fully entitled to do. Surely no young pitcher ever had more conscientious coaching than Dick.

That far-famed "Press Gang" team was composed of the following heroes: John Mandigo, Walter Eschwage, Hon. John Smith, Jim Kennedy, Pete Donahue (P. Jay), George Dickinson, George Stackhouse, Sam Austin, June Rankin, "Doc" McDonough and "Billy" Harris.

De Wolf Hopper, Digby Bell, Pete Dailey, Charley Bigelow, "Billy" Armstrong and other famous footlight stars were on the actor's team, with dear old Nick Engle as substitute.

The game was played on the then Polo Grounds (now Manhattan Field). "Honest John" Kelly umpired.

The score was ——, but we ring the curtain down on that—there are too many of the defeated ones now alive for us to harrow their feelings by bringing up old scores. We believe, though, that Mr. Rudolph, Sr., has the box score in a frame and that he holds it as the choicest of his possessions.

But the question arises is pitching ability inherited? Doubtless Pere Rudolph is pleased to think so, and we would be so if we were him. And we favor the thought, owing to the possibilities—if it were true.

SCHOOL TEAM BATTLE IN BIG ANNUAL GAMES

The school football season will practically come to a close tomorrow, when big annual battles will be fought on many gridirons. Last year close to 100,000 witnessed school games on Thanksgiving Day, and with perfect weather conditions prevailing tomorrow the mark is expected to be reached.

It is hard to pick the best contest of the day, for every contest on the schedule is considered of importance.

The game between Boston Latin and English High, to be played at Fenway Park, will attract its usual large attendance, and this game is likely to be the best played of the day. This is the twenty-sixth annual game between these rival schools. English has won eleven games, Latin nine and five games have resulted in tie scores. English High will outweigh Latin and is considered the favorite.

RINDGE THE FAVORITE.

Somerville and Rindge battle in their game at Somerville, and the Cambridge team is expected to win easily. Somerville has had a very unsuccessful season on the gridiron this year, but the followers of the Red and Blue expect that their team will brace at the last minute and give Rindge the usual hard battle that always marks this game.

Malden and Medford will clash at Medford. These teams have played annual contests since 1895 and each game played has been a fight to the finish. Malden is favorite to win this contest, but not by a big margin.

Newton High plays Waltham High at Waltham, and the home team is the favorite. Newton has displayed good form in recent contests and will give the Watch City team a hard game. Waltham is ranked as the third strongest team in the State this season, and has not as yet suffered a defeat, and it is this record that the Waltham players will battle for tomorrow.

EVERETT PLAYS CAMBRIDGE.

Everett High plays Cambridge Latin and should have an easy time in winning. As Everett plays Oak Park on Saturday it is not expected that Coach Cleo O'Donnell will use his first string men throughout the contest, but Everett has a srong set of substitutes. Everett will take no chances of losing his game or allowing the Cambridge team to score, for Everett has a clean slate and will fight hard to retain this record.

Dorchester High and Cambridge Latin play at the Dunbar avenue grounds, Dorchester, and the usual big crowd is expected. Dorchester has shown much improvement in its recent games and should win tomorrow.

Lawrence plays Lowell at Lowell, Winthrop and Revere clash at Winthrop, Brookline meets Lynn Classical at Lynn, Lynn English plays Gloucester at Lynn, Wellesley will have the Huntington School eleven as its opponents at Wellesley, and a dozen other contests are booked.

Middies Work Hard for Annual Contest

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 25.—With their regimental comrades cheering them and their coaches drilling into them the things they must do, and endeavoring to break them of some of the things which should not be, but which, to a small degree, still are being done, the Navy football players had stiff practice. Considerable time was devoted to meeting some of the Army formations which had been observed during the game at West Point last Saturday by Ensign McReavy of the local coaching staff.

There was further effort to perfect some formations which have been designed for the Army and which have not yet been used in any game here. In this work each of the available backfield men had a turn, and all of the most promising candidates for line positions were given workouts in the varsity aggregation.

Running Stars in Big Race Dec. 5

There will be an international professional ten-mile modified marathon race at Mechanics Building, Saturday evening, December 5. After weeks of much dickering on the part of local promotors the greatest galaxy of professional runners have signified their intention of starting in such a contest.

The list of stars who have already entered for the rich purse include some of the greatest runners known to the professional running game. They are A. E. Wood of Canada, champion runner of the world; Billy Queal, the American long distance champion, and coach of the Yale cross-country team; Al Shrubb, the British champion, and coach of the Harvard cross-country team; Ted Crooks of Fall River, one of the greatest pluggers known to the game, besides many of the local runners.

B. A. A. to Hold Big Bouts Dec. 9 and 12

The next open amateur boxing tournament of the B. A. A. will be held at the club gymnasium on Exeter street, December 9 and 12. On the first date mentioned the preliminary bouts in four classes will be held and the finals will be settled the following Saturday night.

The first shoot of the B. A. A. Gun Club will be held over the traps of the Unicorn Club at the Riverside grounds tomorrow. It will be an all day affair, and will doubtless attract a large field of competitors for the holiday gifts for first and second prize winners.

Colin Bell Couldn't Appear.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Owing to illness, Colin Bell was unable to meet Al Reich at the Broadway Sporting Club in Brooklyn. Jack McFarland of Long Island City substituted for Bell and was given a neat trimming by the former amateur champion. The referee stopped the bout in the sixth round to save McFarland from a knockout.

PAUL POEHLER BEATS RIDDELL IN PIN MATCH

Paul Poehler, New England champion, hung up another prize in his gallery when he defeated Glen Riddell of New York, for the all-around inter-city championship, combining bottlepins, duckpins and candlepins. Poehler won twenty-three of the thirty strings which constituted the match.

Poehler furnished the surprise of the contest when he won four of the five strings at bottlepins in the final block of fifteen strings at the New Boston alleys last night. This is Riddell's own game and an entirely new one to Poehler. The local star showed remarkable skill against the big wood, mowing them down for a five-string average of 192 4-5. He passed the 200 mark on each of his last three strings.

RIDDELL HIT SMALL WELL.

Though beaten at the bottlepins, Riddell shows promise as a candlepin artist and could undoubtedly be developed into a good one in time. He is accurate enough, but is puzzled when it comes down to a question of where to hit spare leaves. This difficulty could be easily overcome with a little practice. He only won one of the five candlepin games, but only once fell below the 100 mark. Poehler also won four of the five at ducks.

Poehler rolled his same consistent game against the ducks and candles, although he found it difficult at first to handle the small ball after rolling five strings with the big spheres.

HOW STRINGS WERE ROLLED.

The complete scores of the thirty strings, the first fifteen of which were rolled on Monday night, follow:

CANDLEPINS.

Averages—Poehler 106 9-10; Riddell, 94 7-10.

DUCKPINS.

Riddell—96, 94, 55, 91, 88, 80, 100, 116, 91, 104—974.
Averages—Poehler, 116 8-10; Riddell, 97 4-10.

Harvard Club to Banquet Eleven

The Harvard Club of Boston will tender a big banquet to the victorious Harvard football team.

The following members of the club have been appointed a committee to have charge of the dinner: Malcalm Donald, '99, chairman; Dudley S. Dean, '91; Herbert H. White, '93; J. Wells Farley, '99, and John W. Hallowell, '01. The committee expects to announce soon the details of the celebration. Among the speakers will be P. D. Haughton, the head coach of the Harvard team; Captain Brickley and Acting Captain Trumbull, and several older football men who have played on winning Harvard elevens. It is believed that on account of the tremendous enthusiasm roused by Harvard's decisive victory over Yale, the coming celebration will break all records.

Board Track for Colby.

WATERVILLE, Me., Nov. 25.—Colby College will build an outdoor board track similar to the one in Mechanics Hall, Boston. It will be 13½ laps to the mile, with banked corners.

WRESTLERS IN BIG MAT BOUTS TOMORROW

The international series of wrestling contests that will be held in Mechanics Building tomorrow night, under the direction of George Tuohey, promise to afford a whole lot of excitement and to incidentally clear the way for the elimination of the weaker members of the grappling brigade and to have the winners meet the pick of the American mat men in a final series to determine the possession of Frank Gotch's crown, provided the Iowa Farmer adheres to his determination not to re-enter the ring.

With Jess Westergard, Doc Roller, Americus, Charley Cutler, Strangler Ed Lewis, Bob Allen of St. Louis, Fenby Lagrangé and other American wrestlers ready to meet to settle which is the best entitled to the American championship and the ultimate winner to meet the best of the foreigners, tomorrow night's series will have a more direct bearing on the possession of the title than any mat battles that have yet been held in Boston.

All six of the principals in the three finish matches that make up the card are in great shape and unless all signs fail there will be plenty of fast and rugged going from the first tap of the gong until the final fall is secured. With all matches to a finish, best two out of three falls, catch-as-catch-can style, the fans are looking forward with keen anticipation to one of the greatest nights of sport they have ever had served to them by the [illegible] promoter.

The order of events will be as follows: Pierrad (Belgium) vs. Isando Bey (Tartar); George Lurich (Russia) vs. Eric Arvidson (Sweden) and Waldek Zbyszko (Poland) vs. Franz Hockmann (Germany).

Harvard Freshmen Receive Numerals

Twenty-two Harvard freshmen have been awarded numerals for their work on the freshmen football team this season.

The complete list of freshmen winning the distinction follows: T. S. Blair of Chicago, W. Burr, Jr. of Lawrence, L. I., P. M. Cabot of Brookline, W. Davis of New York, C. DeRham of New York, T. H. Enwright of Fall River, J. H. Franklin of New York, A. Gardner of New York, F. H. Harvey of Kansas City, W. M. Horne of Pittsburgh, R. Norween of Chicago, T. L. Lathrop of New Hope, Pa., T. T. Mackie of New York, W. J. Murray of Natick, N. D. Nelson of Winthrop, W. F. Robinson of Philadelphia, W. B. Snow, Jr., of Stoneham, H. Talcott of New York, Murray Taylor of New York, T. C. Thatcher of New York, C. C. White of Nutley, N. Y.; M. Wiggin of Brookline.

Cossack Wrestler to Meet Sandele

Michaeloff, the giant Cossack wrestler, will make his initial Boston appearance this evening at the Grand Opera House, when he hooks up with George Sandele, the rough house heavyweight, in a finish match, best two falls out of three. Michaeloff is a hard riding wrestler, who likes to work rough and as Sandele is a wrestler of this same style the chances are that there will be plenty of action while the match lasts. All of the big foreign grapplers who are now in Boston will be on hand and will be introduced.

FREDDIE WELSH IS REAL TITLE HOLDER

By RINGSIDE.

Freddy Welsh, lightweight champion of the well known universe, is today looking for new worlds to conquer. The title holder met Freddy Yelle of Taunton before the Atlas A. A. last night and when the final shot had been fired in the twelfth frame the honorable Mr. Roche, who acted as the third man in the ring, lifted Welsh's trusty right hand in the air as a token of victory.

There was no doubt but that Welsh was entitled to the award, as he fought a slashing battle and had the best of the going in almost every round.

Yelle was beaten, but he did not lose any prestige as a result of the battle. He proved that he is one of the most promising young lightweights in the East and that he has a great ring future. He fought toe to toe with Welsh in many of the rounds and besides gave a remarkable exhibition of gameness.

Yelle proved his true mettle in the ninth session when Welsh tried to land a dream smash. The champion started to force the fighting as soon as the bell sounded at the opening of this frame. The Taunton youth refused to give ground and rushed in close, where he landed a few light blows to the stomach.

YELLE KNOCKED DOWN.

Welsh pushed Yelle away from him and the latter dropped his guard carelessly. Welsh was quick to take advantage of the opening and sent snappy left jab. He then landed a smashing right hand blow on Yelle's jaw and Eddie Moore's protege went to the canvas for the count of eight.

The champion kept forcing the fighting when Yelle regained his feet and swung with well directed left and right hand blows. The Taunton boxer went to the mat again, this time for the count of nine. He proved that he has a fighter's heart and got on his feet again and fought like a real star in the latter part of the session.

Yelle has proved that he is entitled to recognition from the best of the New England lightweights. He must be placed among the entries in the race for the dear old local championship. Matty Baldwin, Eddie Murphy and the rest of our noble 133-135-pound glove men, cannot refuse to avoid a meeting with Yelle in the future.

WELSH REAL CHAMPION.

There is but little need of our boosting Welsh. He is a real champion and his deeds speak volumes in themselves. In little over a month he has fought Matty Baldwin, Ad Wolgast, Charley White, Jimmy Duffy and Yelle. This is a remarkable record and one of which any boxer might well be proud. The little campaign has netted the Welshman close to $50,000, which is not half bad these turbulent times. I know of several men who would work a whole year for this much money. But what's the use of talking about money?

Welsh fought his usual skilful battle against Yelle. He was busy every minute of each round and his work was a revelation to those misguided individuals who believe that all the really great boxers perform ten and really great boxers performed ten and twenty years ago.

The writer does not believe that there is a lightweight in the world who could have beaten Welsh the way he fought last night. He seemed even faster than when he showed against Matty Baldwin at the Arena. It is evident that plenty of rugged boxing agrees with Harry Pollock's protege.

DEPEND ON SKILL.

Welsh, of course, depends almost entirely upon his skill to win his tussles. He is as good at long range as he is at close quarters. It was Welsh's infighting which enabled him to conquer Yelle in such a masterly style.

The Taunton boy was not able to tie up Welsh when the men clinched. The champion slashed away with solid body blows. He would then push his opponent away from him and drive short left and right hand punches to his head.

The champion did not have things his own way all of the time, as Yelle proved a strong, willing opponent. He realized he was pitted against one of the leading boxers of recent years, but he nevertheless kept fighting for all he was worth throughout the encounter.

The men started boxing at a fast pace in the opening round. Welsh took the aggressive, but Yelle proved at this early stage of the game that he was made of the right "stuff," and refused to back away from the title holder. He boxed with Welsh and experienced fair success, although honors for the round were in favor of Welsh.

YELLE DID FINE WORK.

Yelle gained confidence in the next stanza and did some fine work. He kept jabbing with his left while he used his right hand effectively at close quarters. It was a hard, fast round with honors about even.

Welsh began to fight at his best in the third stanza and grabbed off the laurels. He continued to fight fast in the fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth ounds. He had the best of the going in these frames, but Yelle kept busy all the time and aroused the enthusiasm of the "fans" by his fine work.

Then came the sensational ninth round which was described above. The last rounds of the battle were interesting with Welsh having the upper hand.

Noah Brusso, another member of Eddie Moore's stable of boxers, defeated Patsy De Lucca in the semi-final match of eight rounds. There were also two six rounds preliminaries. Howard McRae of Cambridge won from Johnny Murphy of South Boston, while Dave Powers of Malden was given the decision over "Belgium" Brown of this city.

De Oro Will Play Two Hard Matches

Alfred De Oro, three-cushion champion, was in good form yesterday, easily defeating both his opponents. Ammidon in the evening game started like a sure winner, having runs of seven and four early in the game, but De Oro set such a swift pace that he found it impossible to follow and had to be content with 31 points, while the Cuban scored 50. The players for this afternoon and night are Elshoffer and Felton.

SAM LANGFORD BATTLES WILLS IN COAST BOUT

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 25.—Sam Langford and Harry Wills, principals in Tom McCarey's next twenty-round contest, which is slated for the Vernon Arena tomorrow afternoon, have completed training for the bout.

The men have been working along easy lines for the past week, and are right now in fair shape.

The winner of this contest can be expected to be the most-talked-of of the present crop of colored heavyweights, and a match with Champion Jack Johnson is the incentive that goes with a victory here Turkey Day.

Langford just reutrned here from San Diego, where he whipped "Big Jim" Cameron in six rounds.

Wills, after a very successful series of matches in the Bay City, came here under the directions of his manager, John T. Lala, and worked hard at the Vernon Arena for his initial appearance in the Southland.

Physical statistics of the pair just taken shows plainly that Willis has an advantage of height, reach, youth and weight over his more experienced and older antagonist.

Popular prices will rule at this show, for Uncle Tom has placed the admission charge at $1.50 to $5, which is said to be meeting with the highest approval of all concerned. This assures the men an attendance which should bring the gate receipts up to $18,000.

Penn and Cornell Ready for Game

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 25.—Both the Cornell and University of Pennsylvania football team began final preparations for their annual Thanksgiving Day game. The Ithacans are in Atlantic City, while the Red and Blue squad is quartered at White Marsh, a suburb of this city. Neither team indulged in any scrimmage work today, but each was put through some lively signal practice.

Roger Townsend, who had been announced by Coach George Brookes as one of Pennsylvania's tackles for the Cornell game, appeared on crutches, having twisted his knee in a scrimmage with the scrubs yesterday. It is probable that he will be unable to start the game. Urquhart, the end, who also was on the injured list, was in the signal drill today, but the coaches fear that he will not be in shape for the contest.

All Cornell cripples are reported to have recovered.

PACKEY CAN'T MAKE WEIGHT, FRIENDS SAY

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Wouldn't you imagine that a young man who is generally supposed to be worth close to a quarter of a million dollars would get over the notion of bothering to make a ring battle, especially if called upon to train down to a weight that must be exceedingly trying to him?

Can you imagine the strength of an ambition that calls Packey McFarland to the front once more to mix it with Fred Welsh, champion of the world? Well, right in the last few words you can find the solution of the whole thing. Packey is going to do battle and believes sincerely that he has an excellent chance of dropping the present champion for the count.

* * *

EVEN Packey's best friends do not believe that he can make 136 pounds at 3 o'clock or any other time for a match and be fit to make any kind of a showing with a tough opponent. This was evident yesterday when the news that he had told Promoter Jimmy Johnston of New York that he would post a forfeit of $2,500 as a guaranty that he would make the weight and be in shape for a hard ten-round battle. Almost everybody who knows the situation smiled a little and then decided that the Joliet brewer must be spoofing the promoter as well as the newspapers.

* * *

BUT we can assure you that is what Packey really said. He may have changed his mind by now, but he really was of that idea and Johnston went back to New York with the idea that the match was as good as clinched, that is as far as Packey is concerned. He expected to have some trouble on the Welsh end on the weight proposition. Harry Pollock says that for all important matches he would hardly consent to have anybody come in at over 135 pounds at 3 o'clock.

* * *

EVEN Johnston himself was considerably surprised when he got the word that Packey would be ready in January. "Do you really believe it?" I asked him. "Yes, I do, Packey was that positive," he replied. "Why do you imagine he wants to box again?" I asked right back. "It must be his natural desire to lick an Englishman," Jimmy replied with a laugh.

* * *

JOHNSTON believes that all the money in the world wouldn't kill a fighter's ambition to become a champion. "Packey has got everything out of the game in a money way, but still he is dissatisfied," Johnston reasoned. "You see, when a man generally is spoken of as one of the world's greatest boxers and yet never was able to boast of a title, there has been something lacking in his athletic career. It must be almost any man's ambition to shine as the 'best man' in any line of work and to attain much money without gratifying that other ambition makes the whole thing incomplete. I believe that is why he is eager to come back and try to show the world that he is Welsh's master."

* * *

PACKEY dislikes Welsh cordially. There is every reason he should. Welsh held him to a draw in twenty-five rounds in Los Angeles and in London was given another draw after twenty rounds of milling that were so largely in McFarland's favor that even the Englishmen scoffed at the decision. He is anxious to get even. At the same time, while ambition may cut quite a factor in Packey's come-back, don't forget that he can earn a big chunk of money in this fight. And Packey can't see any easier way of getting it than right there.

The Battery A and Cadets will clash in their tenth annual gridiron battle tomorrow morning at the Stadium, and the best game of the entire series is expected. The Cadets have yet to win a contest from the Artillery team, but Captain Jones has gathered a team this year that looks like a winner.

The Cadets have organized a new team for this game, and many players that won their letters on college teams will be in the line-up, including W. Adams of Brown, Lewis of Dartmouth, Brides of Yale, Blanchard of Colgate, Richardson of Tufts and several others.

The Battery team has but three new members, Thomas Jefferson Coolidge, Jr., of Harvard, who ran ninety-five yards for a touchdown against Yale last Saturday, Sigourney of Harvard and F. D. Huntington, a former Harverd star.

More than 20,000 are expected to witness this game. The Battery alone has sent out 15,000 tickets and the Cadets nearly as many.

Neponset Wanderers to Play Catholic Club

The Catholic Club of Dorchester football team and the Neponset Wanderers will play at Dunbar Avenue, Dorchester, Thanksgiving afternoon, the game starting at 2:30 p. m.

The Neponset Wanderers have gone through the entire season without a defeat and the Catholic Club team expects to be the first to take their measure. The Neponset Wanderers number on their team such sterling players as the two Moulton brothers, formerly of Mechanic Arts High School; Simms, formerly of the University of Nebraska, and Locke, one of the strongest amateur players in the State.

Eddie Morgan, one of the fastest ends turned out at Mechanic Arts; Ford, an old Commerce fullback; Moore, who played with Yale, and Nye, one of the best all-round athletes of Greater Boston, will help to make the Dorchester Catholic Club a strong organization.

St. Alphonsus Eleven to Play Roslindale

Great interest has been aroused throughout the Roxbury and Roslindale sections over the football game to be played on Thanksgiving afternoon between St. Alphonsus A. A. of Roxbury and the Roslindale A. A. This annual game will take place at the National League grounds, and is to be called at 3 p. m.

Roslindale this season is represented by the strongest team in its history, and under the guidance of Coach Burkhardt, the former English High School tackle, it has come along in splendid style. The Roslindale team is possessed of a great backfield and the work of this quartet has been the sensation of the season.

St. Alphonsus A. A. has always been represented by a strong team and this year is no exception. The team is captained by Frank Shea, the former Mechanic Arts fullback.

B. C. ELEVEN IS OUT TO WIN IN HOLIDAY CLASH

The centre of the football stage is occupied by the big Catholic college battle between the Boston College star eleven and the speedy aggregation of the Catholic University of Washington, D. C., on Thanksgiving Day afternoon at Fenway Park.

This will be the first appearance of a Catholic University team in Boston, and will be the first athletic game of any sort between teams of the two schools.

There are several Boston boys starring on the Catholic University team and a large host of friends will turn out to see them perform. They are, Eddie Killion, a star tackle, for two years on the Boston College team, who will face his old teammate, Dan O'Connor; Roger Conboy and Frank Rogers, both of whom were former wearers of the Maroon and Old Gold, and Neil Doherty, a former captain of St. John's Prep.

BIG CHEERING SQUAD.

The Boston College Alumni Association has made extensive and untiring efforts to have a large attendance. The Knights of Columbus of Boston will turn out in large numbers to see the representatives of the college to which they, with the other Knights of Columbus of the country, gave the magnificent scholarship fund of $500,000.

A cheering section of a thousand has been formed and for two weeks cheers and songs have been rehearsed expressly for this game.

The game should be a hardly contested one because both teams are almost equal in weight, although the Boston boys are thought to be a trifle faster. Coach Mahoney puts much faith in his players especially since Captain Kiley, O'Connor, McKenna, Driscoll and Bradley, all star men, have returned to the squad this week.

The members of the team seem to have set their every effort on starring in this game. Rogers, the rangy end, is playing a wonderful game, and with Fitzgerald on the other end is expected to pull off some spectacular forward passes. Duffy is playing his usual fast game at half, and Joe Dee, another back who has played but little this season, has rounded into a wonderful defensive back.

KILEY TO START GAME.

Captain Kiley is expected to start. His injured shoulder appears to have fully recovered and his two weeks' rest has put him in top-notch form. Sullivan, the big fullback, is the only back who has been uninjured this season and his playing has been consistently good in all the games.

Oak Park Leaves Tonight for Game

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Oak Park High will start its second invasion of the East tonight, when sixteen players, Principal McDaniels, Coach Thistlethwaite, Faculty Director O'Brien, Student Manager Howe and Trainer Pickney leave for Boston. The suburbans will meet Everett High in Boston Saturday in the feature interscholastic game of the season. Oak Park will not go East with a championship crown on its head, as was the case two years ago when it defeated Everett. The team is not as strong as any of the four past title holding elevens, but still possesses enough football cunning to put up a scrappy battle.

Stars Play when Alumni Teams Clash

Football fans of Medford and Malden are looking forward to next Saturday when the alumni of these two suburban league schools clash at Malden in their annual game.

Both teams have been picked from men who starred on college elevens this year, or in the last few years, and great intereset prevails in the two cities, almost as much as in the Thanksgiving morning game between the schools.

Dave Morey, the old Dartmouth star will captain the Malden team and will have with him such men as Wescott of Tufts, Kempton of Exeter, Gerrish of Dartmouth, Milliken of Yale, Butler of Bates and many others who have starred in the past for the yellow and blue.

Medford too will have its quota of college stars, for Jack Lawless and Brawley of Holy Cross, Bennett and Thorndike of Tufts, Kerr of Bates, Gulliver of Maine, Denney and Grady of Williston and a lot more will come back to play. John Mather, Medford's greatest halfback, will lead the team.

The game last year attracted around 2,500 people and was a thriller from start to finish. Malden is anxious to make up for the defeat of 23 to 0 which they received. Preparations are being made to take care of a record crowd.

Gil Gallant to Box Stone at Atlas A. A.

Gilbert Gallant, Chelsea's rugged lightweight who recently defeated Leach Cross for the second time, has been matched to clash with Harry Stone of New York in the feature bout of twelve rounds at the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday night. Stone recently returned from Australia where he made a grand record, winning the lightweight and welterweight championships of the land of the Southern Cross.

Stone should give Gallant a hard fight, as he is one of the best 135-pound boxers in the world, as he proved by disposing of such men as Matt Wells, Herb McCoy and Johnny Summers.

Harvard Hockey Team Starts Dec. 10

The Harvard hockey team will start active training at the Boston Arena on December 10. Coach Ralph Winsor plans to have his whole squad on hand for the initial workout. In past years the Arena has been ready for skating around Thanksgiving and the Harvard hockey players who were members of the football squad were forced to rest two weeks before taking up hockey.

After a week's practice, Coach Winsor will scrimmage his team against the B. A. A. seven. The practice periods for the Harvard, B. A. A., Technology and the independent teams have not yet been arranged.

Employed Boys Win.

Jimmy Power will compete in the 1000-yard run for the McAleenan trophy, which last year was won by Tom Halpin. The latter will not defend the prize. Power will meet Kiviat, Willie Gordon, Meredith and Homer Baker. "Bill" Meanix, the national quarter-mile hurdle champion, will wear the Back Bay club's colors in the seventy-yard high hurdle event.

Hobey Baker to Play with St. Nicholas

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Hobey Baker, the old Princeton hockey star, has agreed to play with the St. Nicholas hockey team the coming season. Kuhn, who played at Princeton last season, also captaining the seven, is another of the players secured for the St. Nicholas club. It had been understood here that Baker would be identified with the Boston Athletic Association this year.

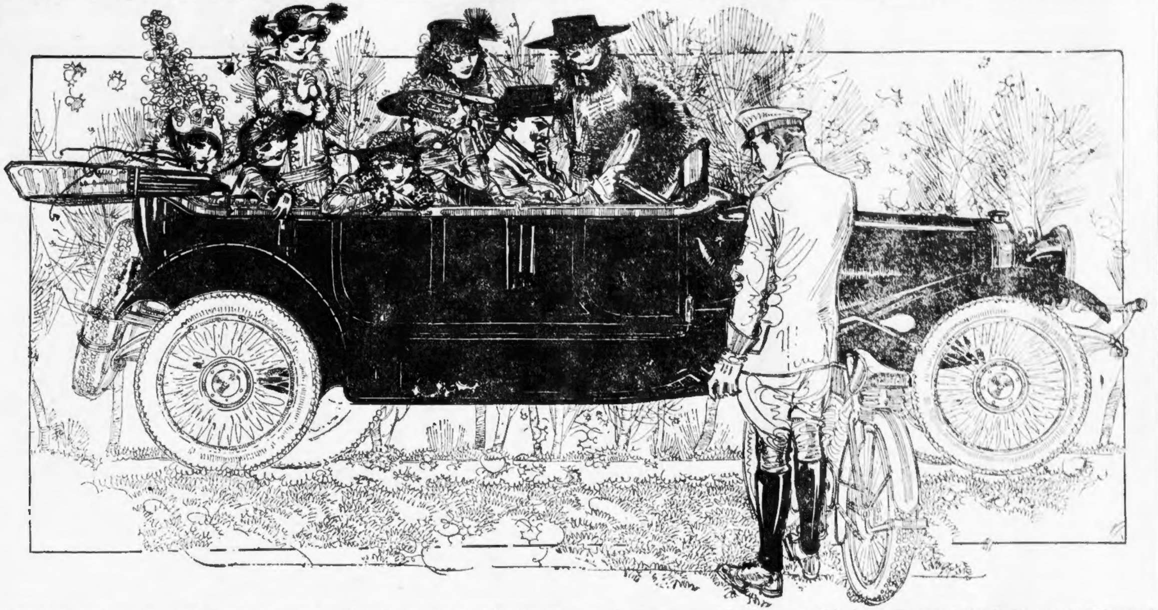
Advice to Speeders

(A Recipe for Softening the Hearts of Motor-Cycle Police)

BY NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1914, by International News Service



I'M not dead certain it will work—I've seen some young and lovely womankind smile on a "cop" who never turned a hair under the fire of their eyes—and I've seen some straight and beautiful policemen with hearts like stones when you were going thirty miles an hour on the parkway, no matter how hard you smiled—but it's the best thing I know—if you have the little speed-call gnawing in your brain—if you are of those motorists who spurn the earth and try to rise off it—who wish that wishes could grow wings to the running boards—take plenty of girls!

Along with your good-nature, fur rugs, plenty of gasoline and water and oil, take plenty of girls to melt the heart of the man in blue who skims alongside and glowers and put out an all-powerful hand that must not be denied. It may be that under the concentrated beauty of the smiles of a dozen pretty girls his eyes may wander and his conscience nod and sleep.

To win a "well—this time—but remember, young fellow, I've got your number," from the swooping "cop"—take plenty of girls.—NELL BRINKLEY.

Their Married Life

Winifred Has a Cold and Helen Sends for a Doctor and Has a Fright

Copyright, 1914, International News Service.

"MY DEAR, I know this is an outlandish time to call on any one, but I had to see you, and here I am." And Miss Barnett sank gratefully into one of the living room chairs and looked around her admiringly. "This is the first time I have ever seen your apartment," she went on. "I think it most attractive."

Helen smiled. She did not know Miss Barnett very well, although she was very prominent in the work of the Current Events Club, of which Helen was a member. A call from her was very unexpected, and at the moment Helen was rather worried about Winifred. She had just finished putting Winifred to bed and had thought she seemed feverish. Although she did not admit it to herself, however, Helen realized in a vague sort of way that she was unnecessarily particular about Winifred and thought that after all the idea that the child was not well was probably just imagination.

She had just finished lunch and Nora was still busy with the table when the bell had rung and Miss Barnett had appeared. Winifred was already asleep and Helen resolved to put the idea of anything being the matter out of her mind entirely.

"I am glad to see you," she said cordially.

"Yes, and I suppose you are crazy to know what I am after."

"Can't I imagine that you have just come to see me?" queried Helen.

Miss Barnett laughed. "Of course, my dear, and it is perfectly true that I have been wanting to call on you for ever so long, but a call at this time of the afternoon would be quite too unconventional."

"Well, what is the great and important thing that you wanted to see me about? I am eaten up with curiosity really, so do tell me."

Miss Barnett curled up into a more comfortable position in the big chair and looked at Helen pleadingly as though she were hardly sure of getting what she had come after.

"Well, you have heard about the children's carnival we are going to have for the benefit of the United Aids—you remember that we discussed it at the last club meeting."

WINIFRED IS WANTED TO POSE AT A CARNIVAL

Helen nodded.

"Well," laughing and pulling a long face, "you don't know how afraid I am to ask this, but we want little Winifred to pose as the Age of Innocence."

Miss Barnett, relieved of the request that had been on her mind, leaned back in her chair with a sigh of relief. Helen could not help laughing at her.

"Why, I haven't any objection," she said slowly. "Of course I'd have to speak to Mr. Curtis about it first, but I am almost sure that he won't object. I hope you can arrange her picture earlier in the evening than some of the others; she is so very young and we never allow her to be up at night."

"We'll do everything in our power," said Miss Barnett, eagerly, "and you are a dear to let us have her. We are having such a terrible time getting children, really good looking ones I mean; for instance, we can't find any one to pose as The Blue Boy, and Mr. Willette, who has charge of the pictures, thinks that we shouldn't miss that."

Like a flash the thought of little Joan Richards came over Helen. If Laura would allow it, what a perfectly beautiful tableau the child would make. She wondered if she ought to tell impulsive Miss Barnett about it. Since Laura had married Mr. Richards Helen felt almost in awe of her in regard to some things. She hardly knew what to do about it.

"What are you hesitating about?" said Miss Barnett, who had been watching her narrowly. "I actually believe that you have thought of some one to pose as The Blue Boy."

Helen had not realized just how much her face had expressed.

"I have a friend who has the most beautiful child that I ever saw outside of a story book," she explained, "but I am not at all sure that I can get her for you."

Miss Barnett was all excitement, but she could not persuade Helen to tell her anything more.

"It wouldn't be fair," insisted Helen, "but I promise you to do all I can for you; I will let you know just as son as I can find out, and I hope you can have her for the Blue Boy."

It wasn't until after Miss Barnett had gone, forced to be content with what Helen had told her, that Helen realized that Laura had not as yet returned her call. It was foolish to think of such a thing, but still the thought was there and she could not help it. Of course she could telephone Miss Barnett that she had tried and the idea was impossible, but it would be a shame not to have Joan pose if there were a chance in the world to get her.

THE CHILD CALLS FROM HER BEDROOM

Helen was musing on the subject and wondering whether or not to telephone Laura when Winifred called her from her bedroom and she jumped up, for the moment the subject of tableaux forgotten entirely. Winifred had just waked up from her nap, and was still rolled up in the silk comfortable just as Helen had left her, but there were pink spots on each of her round little cheeks and her eyes were very large and bright. For a moment Helen's heart seemed to almost stop beating—she was too frightened to breathe.

Then she went over to the bed and picked Winifred up in her arms. The child looked at her strangely for a moment and then smiled and pushed her hand inside Helen's collar against her throat in a little way she had.

Helen caught her up against her passionately. Was Winifred going to be sick again? Why, it was hardly any time since her operation, and she had been so careful about her ever since.

"I want a drink of water, mother," Winifred was saying fretfully, "and I don't want to go out with Nora—it's cold."

"Mother will cover you all up on the bed, dear," Helen crooned, "where it will be nice and warm. Nora!" she called, as Nora passed the room to get dressed. "Come in here for a moment, will you? I don't think Winifred is well enough to go out this afternoon—will you bring her a glass of water, please?"

Nora hurried into the bathroom for a drink and Helen smoothed the child's hot cheeks and wondered whether she ought to send for the doctor immediately or wait till Warren came home. The thought occurred to her to call up Warren, but he disliked her to call him up at the office, and she hated to do it. Still he might come home a little earlier on the strength of it, and she did need him so just now.

Nora came in with the water and Helen held Winifred up while she drank thirstily.

"Get Mr. Curtis in the wire and then call me, will you, Nora?" and then she turned to Winifred while Nora hurried out to do as she was bid.

"Mr. Curtis!" Helen could hear Nora say, and the voice seemed to come from far away. Winifred had fallen into a stupor, with her eyes partly open and her cheeks growing hotter every minute. With a gasp of relief she hurried out to the hall to the telephone at Nora's call.

"Is this you, Warren? Yes, this is Helen. Do you think you could come home early this afternoon. I am so worried about Winifred; she seems to have a high fever."

Warren's voice came singing across the telephone reassuringly calm.

"All right. I'll come up right away. Perhaps you'd better have a doctor in before I can get there. Sure you're not worrying unnecessarily."

"Oh, no, dear; I tell you she is sick. I'll have Nora go down for Dr. Marshall. He's right here in the house. Yes, I know you will, dear. Good-by."

Dr. Marshall, the calm young doctor who had the apartment on the first floor, came in just before Warren. He examined Winifred carefully and smiled at the fear in Helen's eyes. Winifred had begun to breathe hard, and the doctor lifted her up into his arms quickly and carried her out into the kitchen.

"She's in for an attack of croup," he explained to Helen. "We'll steam her over the mouth of the kettle, and then I'll give you some medicine. You called me in plenty of time, so there is no danger."

Helen watched him as he deftly arranged a tent of a blanket, and a moment later was sitting with Winifred on his knee, the steam from the kettle pouring into the child's mouth. In the midst of it Warren came in and at the same time the telephone rang and Nora flew to answer it.

Later, when Winifred was in bed and the doctor had gone, and she, close beside Warren on the arm of his chair, was watching the child fall quietly asleep, Helen thought suddenly of the telephone message.

"It was Miss Barnett, ma'am," whispered Nora, when Helen encountered her in the dining room. "I told her you'd call her up later."

Helen smiled as she went back to her post. How little things like that seemed to control when the really big worries came along, she reflected. After all, God was very good to her.

(Another instalment in this interesting series will appear on this page soon.)

Just So.

"Hetty," rebelliously cried the vicar's nine-year-old daughter, "am I ever going to have a new frock? That's the worst of being the youngest—I've got to wear every one else's cast-off dresses!"

"You're a very naughty girl, Caroline," reproved the elder sister. "You seem to forget that father's got to keep eight of us on very little money."

"It's always the same," snivelled the baby of the family, as she flounced out of the room. "Can't have this, can't have that, can't have anything in the house."

Smack she bumped into the vicar himself.

"Crying?" he inquired. "I've splendid news. A dear little baby sister has arrived!"

Having delivered his bombshell he stood back to see the effect.

Caroline pulled herself together quickly.

"Well, papa," she said, disgustedly, "I suppose it can't be helped now, but I do think there were a lot of other things we needed more!"

CHAPTER XXX.—(Continued)

JENNY cowered before the hard, stern expressions of all around her. She looked at Victor as if seeking instructions. "Oh," she whimpered, "I'm so sorry. I had no idea. What on earth am I to say, Vic? I can't deny it now, can I?"

Captain Steele frowned. "Of course you can't. You are here to confirm what you told Mrs. Varney. She is not at all anxious to pass as my wife."

He looked at the woman meaningly. The look did not pass unnoticed by Gaveston.

"Well, all right," gasped the unhappy Queen of Diamonds desperately. She addressed herself to Varney. "It's as your wife told you. Her marriage with Victor was void, it seems, because he had already married me, and I am alive, you see. So that makes your marriage all right, I suppose. It seems rather a muddle, doesn't it?"

Oswald turned to Leslie and bowed his head humbly. "I beg your pardon," he said. "It is the happiest moment in my life to know that I am in truth your husband."

She made no reply, but walked across to the window and looked out into the street. She turned stealthily and glanced toward Victor. He was still leaning against the table, gazing at the carpet, as if lost in thought. All at once she was conscious of an impulse to rush toward him, to tell him that she was sorry for him, to cry out that she didn't believe he was vile. She crushed down the impulse and despised herself for it.

WERE MARRIED BY ARMENIAN PRIEST

Sir Ralph extracted a match from the stand and lit a fresh cigarette with much deliberation. "Where did this marriage take place?" he inquired. "What's that got to do with you?" snapped Jenny. She made an appealing movement toward Varney. "There were circumstances—believe me—which extenuated Victor's conduct. I—I—can't explain. Oh, I wish I had never told you!" Her arms dropped limp beside her. She noted the questioning incredulity written on the baronet's face. "We were married," she went on defiantly, "by an Armenian priest; it was quite regular."

"Do you want any further corroboration?" asked Victor of Varney.

"Well, I don't know. I suppose not. I see no reason to doubt what this lady says." Oswald smiled sarcastically. "I remember," he said, addressing her, "that you told us in the boat that Captain Steele was the only man you had ever loved or something of that kind. Captain Steele and I seemed destined to cross each other's path. What do you say, Ralph? This seems to clear up the matter—what?"

"Since when have you been accustomed to consult Sir Ralph Gaveston about your private affairs?" asked Leslie, scornfully, without turning her head.

Victor looked quickly toward her. "Of course," he said, "if you are very anxious, Varney, to dissolve ——"

"Spare me your insults, Captain Steele," Oswald interrupted hotly. "I am quite satisfied with this lady's explanation. I could not imagine any woman claiming you as husband unless she was obliged by a strong sense of duty. You have my sympathy, Mrs. Steele," he bowed to Jenny.

"I'm sure I don't want it," she retorted tartly, "and if you have all quite finished with me, I will say good evening."

"I think I will go also," said Victor, rousing himself from his absorption. He moved toward the door and opened it for the woman who had proclaimed herself his wife. He paused and looked at Varney. "You know where to find me," he said significantly, "and remember—I shall not remain in London more than a few days longer."

Leslie stared after the couple when the door closed behind them, as if she saw a very strange thing. Even then it was impossible for her to realize that Victor was another woman's husband.

LESLIE IGNORES SIR RALPH'S PRESENCE

The women were regarding her intently and curiously. Sir Ralph had risen and now glanced interrogatively at his cousin.

"I think," he said, "I had better go also. I am very sorry, Oswald, that I should have made your wife's acquaintance in such distressing circumstances."

Leslie ignored his remark and his presence. She resumed her seat and again took up her magazine.

"I wish," continued the Baronet, addressing his cousin, "that you would say a word on my behalf to your wife. It is hardly fair to blame me for what has occurred, is it?"

"Do you hear what Ralph says, Leslie?" asked Varney a little timidly.

"Yes, I can't help hearing. What do you wish me to say—to either of you?"

"I think you ought to tell Mrs. Varney how this unhappy business was brought about," suggested Sir Ralph, continuing to address Oswald.

Oswald began his explanation. "You have no reason to be down on Ralph, Leslie. A friend of his had a grudge against the scoundrel who has just left us—for which I don't blame him. For some reason it occurred to him to find out whether or not Steele was married. He went to Somerset House and found this. He told Ralph, not knowing who Leslie Morne was. Ralph, of course, did not tell him, but repeated the matter to me, as you will admit he was bound to do."

Sir Ralph listened meekly to his vindication. "I need not say," he said at the conclusion, "how glad I am to find that everything has come out right."

CHAPTER XXXI.

LESLIE heard him in sulky silence. After all, the man did not seem to be the author of the mischief, and he could not very well have acted otherwise. "Very well," she said ungraciously. "I am sorry if I have done Sir Ralph an injustice. It was not your fault," she said, for the first time addressing him directly, "that you were a witness to the insults offered me under my husband's roof."

Oswald paled and stared gloomily into the empty grate. Sir Ralph bowed to Leslie.

To Be Continued Friday.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR, WHAT CAUSES IT

Nature does not produce coarse, stubborn growth of superfluous hair. Such growths are brought about by the unwise use of so-called hair removers because they stimulate and increase hair growth after each removal. The proper way to remove superfluous hair is to devitalize it. This result can only be accomplished by the use of De Miracle, which does more than merely remove the surface hair. It attacks the hair under the skin as well as on the skin. Therefore, results from its use are immediate and lasting.

Protect yourself. Insist on De Miracle, the original liquid hair remover. Refuse worthless imitations. Remember, you are not asked to buy De Miracle on a mere promise of your money being refunded if you are not satisfied. When you buy De Miracle you get the only depilatory that has a binding guarantee in each package which entitles you to your money if it fails.

De Miracle can be purchased in 60c and $1.00 bottles at all good drug and department stores or will be mailed in plain sealed wrapper on receipt of price direct by De Miracle Chemical Co., Park Ave. and 129th St., New York.—ADVERTISEMENT.

A Truly Remarkable Ashmont 2 Apt. Bargain

Rents $68 Monthly. First Mtge $5,000 at 5 Per Cent. Ideal Location.

PRICE $6,600.

THE CHANCE is hereby presented to secure the above property, which will be found exactly as described and which is tendered to the public as an unheard of opportunity. The concern offering same makes a business of purchasing realty in large estates through deaths, settlement or foreclosure, providing there is a chance of reselling the properties in small parcels as the best bargains in their respective sections; owing to the sloth of the present market, however, the above property is offered at less than cost; in our estimation this would sell readily at $7,500, but the desire to make a quick cash sale has prompted us to make the price so low that the property must sell itself at once; it is worthy of quick consideration on the part of anyone desiring a beautiful home and an ideal investment. M 55, Boston American.

Thanksgiving Day and Reason to Be Thankful

We Americans May Say to Each Other What Noah Probably Said to the Giraffe, "You're Lucky to Be on This Boat"

Thanksgiving Day tomorrow. It has a meaning for people in America that it has not had since the days of our own big war.

And we have better reason for giving thanks now than we have ever had, even in war time.

You can imagine the feelings of Noah and his family, and the giraffes and the lions and the microbes and small insects and bacteria all rescued by him, when they looked over the edge of the ark and saw everybody else drowned.

They must have said to each other:

"Let us give thanks and keep it up for some time to come. We are lucky men, animals and insects."

So the people of the United States may look around and congratulate each other tomorrow.

What we have been pleased to call European civilization is engaged in organized murder.

On one side, one million five hundred thousand men are hidden in trenches, or behind breastworks, seeking to kill others.

On the other side another one million and a half in other breastworks and ditches are killing and trying to kill.

Europe is at war, killing hundreds of thousands of men, squandering thousands of millions of dollars, destroying commerce that has taken years in the building, preparing sorrow for one hundred years to come.

And here in America we have peace, opportunity, freedom from the curse that afflicts Europe.

We have our troubles and sorrows. We suffer in a smaller way because of conditions in Europe.

BUT WE HAVE PEACE.

And we intend to maintain it. And we may well be THANKFUL.

More Power to the Providence Chamber of Commerce

The business men of Providence are trying to increase the membership of their Chamber of Commerce and thus to make it one of the largest in New England. The AMERICAN earnestly hopes that the project will be successfully pursued.

The size of a business organization increases its influence and is very likely to increase its ambition to EXERCISE its influence in public affairs of its community.

There WAS a time when these business organizations were a source of danger to the public welfare, for they were merely tools in the hands of the special interests—cloaks which gave these interests respectability and enabled them to speak in the voice of the public. But that time has passed. Conservative business men now realize that they are as much the victims of over-capitalization and of extortion by the corporations and of the evil control which these special interests exercise over public servants as are the common run of the people.

The business man has now awakened to appreciate that often he suffers more than the poor man by the misconduct of big business. The poor man suffers in the increased cost of fares and for electric light and gas and in the other necessaries of life, while the business man suffers not only in all these things, but in the depression of business, in the loss of confidence between men and in his investments, by such misbehavior as characterized the management of the New York, New Haven & Hartford by the Wall Street cabal which controlled it.

Today, the scales have fallen from the business men's eyes. They no longer measure the worth of a man by the enormous salary which he draws from a public service corporation or by the fortune which he has accumulated through methods which they formerly did not understand, but which are now known to every intelligent business man in the country. They are no longer impressed with the dignity and power of railroad presidents who have been revealed as mere puppets of distant speculators, who know nothing about the property they control, except its value as an instrument of speculation.

It is because the point of view of the average business man has radically changed today that it becomes important to increase the size and therefore the influence of the business organizations. If the Providence Chamber of Commerce can be made as influential as the Boston Chamber of Commerce has been during the last five years, it will be a blessing, not only to the people of Providence, but to the whole State of Rhode Island, as the Boston Chamber of Commerce has been a blessing to the people of Massachusetts.

ALAS LASS!

By LILLIAN LAUFERTY

ALAS! Too fast your petals you unfold;
Too soon you show your heart of virgin gold.
Dear rose, if you had dwelt in purer air and cold
Another tale of you I might have told.

Exotic warmth has laid your heart so bare
That eager fingers force pollution there,
And touch your sweetness till they even dare
To pluck your petals that in death are fair.

Alas! Dear lass, how like a lovely rose,
That would have bloomed in life's sweet garden close,
Where time your gentle flowering would dispose—
You, too, have flamed and died ere you had blossomed, Rose!

The Continuance of Life After Death

Creeds Have Nothing Whatever to Do with Real Religion—the Religion Based on Knowledge of Other Realms Beyond This Earthplane and the Existence of Beings in Those Realms Who Have Cast Off This Earth-Body

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

A MAN who is a worker for the good of his fellow beings in all material ways, and who tries to do his duty by helping to make this world a more agreeable spot, sent to the writer of this article a book which he had published. Before posting the book he sent the following letter, saying that the volume would follow by the next mail.

The contents of the book would be the illustration and amplification of the contents of his letter, which is given below:

"I am not a Christian and do not believe in a conscious continuation of the ego. As a result of study and experience as a physician. I consider the brain an organ whose function is the mind, which ceases with the dissolution of the organ. Oblivion follows, as it preceded our ego.

"As long as we have a religion, so-called, we will have war, disease and crime. We do not hesitate to die because death is supposed necessary to live again. When we emerge from all superstition this life will seem so precious, being the only one, that everybody would see to it that all others enjoy the same privileges here as we do ourselves in order that no one might shorten our life because of envy or jealousy. * * *

"Some think that the thought of consciousness ending with life would bring despair. Personally, I find peace and a greater love for humanity. The Christian is good because he is a human being above all else.

"Eternity has passed without pain or regret for unconsciousness, and so we will cease and be unconscious of our material relation throughout eternity."

Convinced Beyond Question of the Existence of Life After Death

To this letter the following answer was returned, together with the book:

"I thank you for having written me an outline of the contents of your book. I am an extremely busy woman. Hundreds of rare volumes of great literature await my reading. Important and beautiful duties await me every hour. Life grows more and more interesting and time more and more valuable. What you have written me regarding your book convinces me that I do not want to read it.

"My own studies and my own personal experiences and the testimonials of hundreds of brilliant men and women of my acquaintance prove to me beyond question the existence of life after death. I know we all have invisible Helpers dwelling on higher planes than earth, ready to help us and to give us light if we seek their assistance. The name of one guide who looks after me I know. He lived more than a thousand years ago, but I am one of the fortunate beings whose destiny He helps direct. I know that I have lived many times on earth and have yet many more lives to live here and in other realms before I finish my cycle.

"Knowing all these things and being helped and uplifted by this knowledge, why should I waste my time on a book such as you say you have written?

"And why should I leave a book in my home for others to read who, lacking my knowledge or possessing a weaker mind, might be made despondent and despairing by its contents? Personally I would not care to live a single day longer on earth if I believed as you do.

"I have every earthly blessing, but I only value them because they are an expression of infinite realms which lie beyond me. I remember my past incarnation, and the chief ambition of my life is to make good karma here and now, and come back with new power for usefulness in the next.

"I am returning your book which you will see has not been opened."

True Religion Calls for Consciousness of Realms Beyond Graves

Although this present and most terrible war of the world's history is purely a commercial war, it is true that the greater number of wars which have devastated the earth have been religious wars.

Men have tortured and killed their fellows to prove how they loved God. They have committed every possible atrocity to punish others for having a faith different from their own, believing God loved such bloody zeal. But all these facts carry no weight as an argument against the continuance of life after death.

Creeds have nothing whatever to do with real religion—the religion based on knowledge of other realms beyond this earthplane, and the existence of beings in those realms who have cast off this earth-body.

True religion calls for consciousness of the Supremacy of the All-Creative Power and the Oneness of all created things with that Power; consciousness of the existence of Invisible Helpers ever ready to give strength and light to those who call, and consciousness of the Realms beyond the grave where the immortal part of all beings continues to progress.

In this brief life, so filled with separations from those we love, there can be no more ignoble or unworthy task assumed by a human being than that of trying to destroy faith in life after death.

The best good, the best happiness and the best achievements can never come to one who does this needless dark deed.

As well go about the earth knocking down the supports of beautiful structures, saying all buildings should rest upon the earth alone.

Life does not end with the grave. The earth is only one of many forms in the mansions of the Father. Angels and archangels do exist and are real as men and women and possess larger powers of usefulness. Prayer and meditation bring us in contact with these invisible helpers.

INQUEST ON KILLING IN STORE

A formal inquest opened today before Judge Perkins in the Brookline District Court into the murder of Charles J. Merrill, slain in the Hitchcock drug store at No. 999 Beacon street when he kicked shut the safe door to prevent the theft of money within the safe.

The murder occurred last Friday night. Two yeggs were involved, and $1,000 reward has been offered for their capture.

The district attorney of Norfolk County was represented at the inquest today by Fred Katzman. The witnesses were George W. Slason and Reginald C. Pickett, clerks in the Hitchcock drug store; Dr. G. H. Davis, the first physician to examine the body; Medical Examiner Harry W. Cutts; Chief of Police Alonzo W. Corey of Brookline, and Detective Sergeant H. Allen Rutherford.

The inquest was private; and the report of Judge Perkins will be made to the Superior Court. The inquest was expected to last all day.

SEARCH CONTINUED.

The search for the two yeggs was today spread over all the New England States. The Brookline selectmen have offered a $500 reward; and Governor Walsh for the State added $500 to that figure.

Plain clothes men who have scoured Boston are practically convinced the men succeeded in making their escape from the city soon after the killing. Several suspects who have been rounded up recently have been released after clerks in the store failed to identify them.

COVER WIDE AREA.

With the description of the two men in the hands of the police officials throughout a wide area the Boston department believes there is still a chance the men will be caught.

One of the bandits is described as follows:

About thirty years of age, five feet eleven inches, 165 pounds, smooth face, wore a brown suit and a brown cap or low crowned soft brown hat.

The other man is thus described:

About twenty-three years of age, five feet eight inches, 140 pounds, light complexion, smooth face, frowsy hair, wore a brown suit and a light-colored check cap.

Man of 70 Found Frozen in a Car

A man with seventy years of life behind him and nothing but sorrow in the retrospect sought shelter from the chilling cold (the newspapers wrapped around his body were poor substitutes for woolen underclothes) in a refrigerating car on the siding of the North Packing Company in Somerville, and they found his body in the car today. No one seemed to know who he was—just a man of seventy or so, starved and frozen to death.

"On with the dance" for the AMERICAN'S "Give-a-Basket" fund.

Popular interest in the fund, already lively and generous, is increased today by the news that the Tammany Club of Ward 17, Mayor Curley's notable organization, is to give a charity ball for the benefit of the fund.

In making this announcement the Mayor is merely following up the endorsement he previously gave the "Give a Basket" movement from City Hall. Mrs. Curley has likewise praised it.

The Tammany Club's charity ball will take place in Symphony Hall on Wednesday evening, December 16. The net proceeds of the ball will be turned over to the AMERICAN for this fund.

The Mayor estimates that at least $2,500 will be netted. If it costs about 2 to fill a Christmas dinner basket for an average family, one can readily estimate what an immense number of families this charity ball will supply with Yuletide cheer.

The Tammany Club will hold a special meeting tonight to receive the ball tickets from the printer and to distribute them among the members, to be sold throughout the city.

Governor Walsh, who has endorsed the "Give a Basket" movement in both sympathtic and practical manner, will be at the ball.

His Excellency will lead the grand march with Mrs. Curley, the Mayor's wife.

The Mayor will follow, with Mrs. Edward P. Barry, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor, on his arm.

Behind them will follow a long list of people, representing the social, political and business life of the city.

Tickets for the ball are $1 each and calls for them are coming in.

Joseph P. Collins, the Roxbury piano dealer, sends his check for $50 and writes:

"Great thing. Let everybody come in."

William J. Corcoran, the energetic District Attorney of Middlesex

LONDON GLOOMY, SAY AMERICAN WOMEN ARRIVING ON ARABIC

Miss Dorothy Hoyt of Pittsburgh, at left, and Miss Minnie Dehan of Roxbury, who found England too depressing.

London was too dull for Dorothy Hoyt of Pittsburgh, so she decided to come back to the United States, and arrived today on the Arabic, accompanied by Mrs. Mary Larsen.

Miss Hoyt was in a fashionable school in London, where her parents are spending some time, and up till the time war was declared she liked London right well. Her father is a retired business man of Pittsburgh.

"But there's no social life in London now," Miss Hoyt declared today. "It's all dark and weird-looking at night, and people go around with gloomy faces. It was too dull for me. I couldn't stand it any longer.

"There's really nobody left in London anyway. All the men have gone to war, and all the women are weeping. So I'm going to visit some friends in Clinton, New Jersey, for a while. London was too quiet."

There were others aboard who were dissatisfied with England. Mrs. Nettie Dehan and her daughter Minnie of Roxbury were in Lancashire, but things got too gloomy for them.

Among the two or three hundred passengers on the Arabic were some who did not complain that England was dull. They were Germans who had found England too hot for them, and had been politely urged to vacate. Andrew Hemm used to keep a hotel in Scotland, but had to give it up when war began, and Ernest Vogel left in London a business he had spent thirty years in building up, when the English authorities prescribed a trip to the United States for his health.

MRS. SPRINGER IS FOUND DEAD ON LAKE SHORE

MARLBORO, Nov. 27.—The body of Mrs. Walter C. Springer, the Marlboro clubwoman who mysteriously disappeared from her home on the night of Tuesday, November 17, and for whom policemen, firemen, militia and the residents of Marlboro had been searching for the past ten days, was found today in Fort Meadow Pond about two miles from her home.

The finding of the body gave rise to several theories as to how the woman met her death. Relatives and friends believe Mrs. Springer was stricken with a sick headache and while in a semi-comatose condition walked into the pond and was drowned.

Fort Meadow Pond is close to the Marlboro-Hudson line. Mrs. Springer's body was found by Deputy Sheriff A. J. Adams and a posse of friends of the woman. The body was caught under the ice, close to the shore bordering the estate of former Mayor Morse of Marlboro. Mrs. Springer was fully clothed and the body was in a good state of preservation.

KAISER'S ARMY IN POLAND IS CAUGHT IN TRAP

The capture of an entire German army corps, numbering 50,000 men, by the Russian troops in Poland, was announced today by the official Army Messenger at Petrograd. It also stated that another whole corps had been surrounded.

"The Russian troops have redoubled their offensive," said the Army Messenger. "An entire German corps of 50,000 men surrendered when cut off from the main army in Poland. Another corps has been surrounded and probably will have to surrender.

"The terrific losses suffered by the Germans have compelled them to weaken their offensive, though they have rushed up great numbers of reinforcements. It is expected that formal announcement of complete and overwhelming victory in Poland will be made by the Grand Duke Nicholas within a short time.

"Our successes continue in Galicia and the Russian troops that penetrated Hungary have taken several thousand prisoners."

Unofficial advices received by the Russian Embassy at Rome report that some of the outer fortifications of Przemysl have been captured by the Russians.

RUSSIANS DEFEAT THE TURKS.

The Russians are also operating vigorously against the Turks.

It is officially announced at Tiflis that the Turkish forces east of Erzerum have been completely routed by the Russians, and have fled to that stronghold. The Russians have taken 9,000 prisoners and 16 guns. Fighting has been renewed south of Alashgerd, but the Kurd horsemen and their Turkish reinforcements have been driven back.

Two Turkish submarines that tried to enter the harbor of Sebastopol to attack the Russian warships were discovered and

KAISER'S UNDER SEA CRAFT ESCAPE BRITISH FLEET

LONDON, Nov. 27.—An official inquiry has been ordered to determine the exact cause of the sinking of the British battleship Bulwark at Sheerness, only a few miles from London, with but fourteen saved out of the 750 men on board.

While the consensus of opinion at the Admiralty is that the explosion on the Bulwark was due to accident, there is evidence to support the theory that a torpedo from a German submarine sent the battleship to the bottom and as a result the public is in a state of considerable alarm.

A dispatch from Rotterdam today says that several German submarines which are in the harbor at Zeebrugge escaped to sea despite the heavy bombardment of that port by British warships. One of these may have been bold enough to make the dash to Sheerness.

Reports from Dunkirk, Calais and Havre state that the German submarines which are patrolling the English Channel and the North Sea are becoming bolder. These reports naturally have strengthened the suspicion that the destruction of the Bulwark was not accidental. Every British troop ship, it is learned, is now guarded by a heavy convoy of torpedo boat destroyers, and the hospital ships which ply back and forth carrying the wounded to England for treatment are also vigilantly guarded.

MANY BODIES WASHED ASHORE.

One rumor ascribes the destruction of the Bulwark to treachery on board the battleship, perhaps through the work of a German spy.

The opinion expressed at the admiralty, which withheld its final verdict pending the inquiry called for this afternoon at Chatham, was that the disaster resulted from the bursting of a lyddite shell that was dropped while the warship was taking on ammunition. The officials believe that in a moment of carelessness the men carrying the 12-inch shell permitted it to drop in the magazine.

Many bodies are being washed ashore today near Sheerness.
